PRANKSTERS PUT TRUCK IN STREET

NEW LENOX CHURCH SCENE OF WEDDING

At a Nuptial High Mass in St. Jude's Catholic Church, New Lenox, Miss Doris Schneider, became the bride of Mr. John Smigo Jr. The Rev. Father Hosenstab, A. F. M. officiating.

At 8 o'clock Saturday morning the new organ in St. Jude's church swelled out beautifully as Wagner's Bridal March from Lohengrin was played for the first time under the capable fingers of Miss Margaret Fermento, organist.

The mass of the angels was sung by the church choir. At the offertory Miss Fermento sang Wagner's Ave Marie.

The church was beautifully decorated with large bouquets of chrysanthemums, and snapdragons and large blue bows marked the family's pews.

The bride was given in marriage by her brother, Mr. Edward Berens. She was very attractive in a floor length gown of baby blue chiffon velvet with a small train. She wore a gold brooch of her great-grandmother's, a gold chain and locket with matching wrought, a gift of the groom. Her finger tip veil was of blue silk net falling gracefully from a crown of braided velvet. She carried a cascade bouquet of rubian lilies.

The bride was attended by her sister, Irma Schneider, as maid of honor and Dorothy Smigo, as bridesmaid. The maid of honor was beautiful in a gown of peach taffeta trimmed in dubonnet velvet, her headress was a band of blue rosebuds nestled in pink net, with flowing velvet ribbons of dubonnet velvet. She carried a cascade bouquet of dubonnet carnations. The bridesmaid was similarly dressed in peach taffeta with blue velvet trim and she carried pink carnations.

Two adorable flower girls preceded the bride and her mother in the processional march. They were Mary Alice Ardaugh, niece of the bride, and Ann Smigo, sister of the groom. They wore floor length dresses of blue taffeta trimmed in pink velvet and carried small baskets of baby chrysanthemums.

The groom was handsomely attired in a formal morning suit as was his brother, Mr. Bernard Smigo who acted as best man and Mr. Francis, brother of the bride, as groomsmen. Mr. Robert Reiter and Mr. Raymond Smigo were ushers.

The bride's mother wore a street dress of soldier blue wool crepe, trimmed with ruby buttons, her accessories were of dubonnet. She wore a corsage of orchids.

The groom's mother wore black velvet with black accessories. Miss Fermento wore a brown dress of crepe Romane and a lovely corsage of yellow roses, a gift of the bride and groom.

Upon leaving the church the bridal party was entertained at a breakfast party at the home of Mrs. James Hayes. The guest list included besides the bride and groom and attendants, Mrs. Clara Schneider, Mr. and Mrs. John Smigo, Sr., Mrs. Alice Ardaugh and Mr. and Mrs. Ed. Berens. Mrs. Hayes was assisted by Mrs. Alice Knauber, and Mrs. Fern Brown.

At one o'clock a dinner was served at the Sievert Tea Room. The guest list was the same as that attending the breakfast with the following additions: Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Smigo, Mr. Peter Wilhelm of Bancroft, Iowa, Mr. and Mrs. J. Hayes and son, Mr. Raymond Smigo, Mr. Maurice Ardaugh, Mr. Joe Smigo and Richard Smigo and the Misses Rosemary, Bernadine and Theresa, Mr. and Mrs. John Smigo, Jr. will be at home to their friends after Nov. 3 at 1013 Washington St., Lockport.

Expresses Appreciation

The News-Bulletin is in receipt of the following letter from C. A. Mitchell, Jr., of the Studebaker Sales Corporation of Philadelphia:

Mr. William Semmler,
The News Bulletin,
Mokena, Illinois

Dear Bill:

I am indeed sorry that I have not had the opportunity to thank you and all my friends and my Dad's friends in Mokena, who certainly showed us that Mokena has a warm heart.

I wish you would take this letter and place it in your paper so that each and every one in Mokena can read of our appreciation for the sympathies they extended to us when we lost our Dad.

Thanks again for all that you did for my father, myself, and our family and it will be most pleasant memories that we shall always have of Mokena.

Very truly yours,
C. A. MITCHELL, Jr.

Do You Want A Leader Or A Master?

Your vote this coming election day will be the most important you have ever deposited in a ballot box. With you, and with your fellow voters in country and city, will rest a multitude of grave decisions fateful for America. You will have just one chance to express your preference. That will be when you mark your ballot.

Whatever choice the majority makes will be the law of the land. All of us must and will abide by it. We hope every citizen will vote. We hope every vote will be cast with a full understanding of the question to be determined on that Tuesday.

The ballots of American citizens, free and equal at the polls for a century and a half, will decide November 5 whether the American way of life shall be continued, or changed.

With all the ups and downs we have shared in this nation, we think the American way is a good way, the best way. It has produced for the average American family three times as much of goods and welfare as the dictator states have produced.

This is no ordinary political fight between parties for the right to manage public affairs. It is a struggle, between representative government as we have long known it in America, and the discredited totalitarian ways of Europe.

That is not too blunt. On one side are all this little dictators now functioning here. They are lined up together—Hague of New Jersey, Kelly of Chicago, Pendergast of Kansas City, Guffey of Pennsylvania. Side by side with them are the cunning Corcorans and Cohens and their kind who behind the scenes have maneuvered for seven and a half years under cover to enlarge executive power. At the head, after riding roughshod over the Chicago convention to perpetuate his power, stands their master.

Do Americans want a master? Is that your choice?

Four years ago Mr. Roosevelt said that certain groups had in his first term met their match and in his second would meet their master. By "certain groups" he meant every one.

Steadily new powers have been built up in the executive hands. Not one of these has been returned at any time to Congress or to the People. Freedom of action has been limited by taxation, by regulation, by restriction. Behind the White House doors are more clubs of power that have not been used—powers over industry and thus over labor, both of which are linked with agriculture.

Now the National Guard is called to federal service. The last line of defense for state rights is gone. A conscript army is about to be called.

The People's decision will be final. If they want a master, Franklin D. Roosevelt is their man. He would probably be as kind and benevolent a master as any.

But once the people decide to have a master, there is no way of turning back, nor of fighting back. Except by revolution—difficult when facing bombers and tanks—they can not hope to retrieve their powers and their liberties.

If we want to follow the ways of Europe, and live under some form of totalitarianism, we have that choice.

We can have the totalitarian way under Mr. Roosevelt.

Under Mr. Willkie we can regain representative government, the kind under which the nation has flourished. With it we can have the freedoms and liberties which are the essence of America.

Those who believe in the principles of either the Democratic or the Republican parties will alike cast their votes for Mr. Willkie.

Anxious and willing for the mandate to be master is Mr. Roosevelt. Prepared to be a leader and public servant is Wendell Willkie.

The decision is yours to make on November 5.

The Draft Is On

Tuesday was a momentous day for the young men of this and surrounding communities when the draft numbers were announced over the radio.

Among those numbers listed in the forefront of the drawing were those of H. P. Rose, and several others from Mokena.

To Dedicate New Tinley Methodist Church Sunday

One of the most outstanding events in the local history of Tinley Park will take place Sunday, Nov. 3rd, when the new $35,000 Methodist church will be dedicated with special dedicatory services in the morning, afternoon and evening.

The dedication service will begin at 10 a. m., and at noon a dinner will be served in the church parlors. The complete program of all events for Sunday and for special services during the week appears on page 5 of this issue.

The new Tinley Park church was brought about thru the merger of the German Methodist and English Methodist congregation following the destruction by fire of the German Methodist church located in Orland township.

The services in the new edifice represent the ultimate good that may come of a lightning bolt, plus community cooperation under the leadership of an energetic minister, the Rev. Lawrence E. Weinreich. The structure, located two blocks west of the railroad station, is the proof that a congregation of 156 can raise $30,000 in less than a year.

History of the Tinley Park Methodist church becomes a kind of history of Tinley Park. Originally, the community was settled by English farmers. Their church was Methodist. Later, German farmers moved in, and they wished to have the German language spoken at worship. There was a split in the old congregation. The churches became known as the Tinley Park English Methodist church and the Orland Township German Methodist church.

Built in 1859

The first building put up by the German settlers was erected in 1859. The second was built in 1887, a frame structure two miles west and one-half mile north of the village with a little cemetery beside it. The place the third time, June 7, 1938, it was struck three times by lightning and burned.

By Aug. 1 of that year, the congregation had united with the town group. The minister, the Rev. C. H. Hedler, retired the following October. A student pastor, Robert Pierce serving in the village, was transferred at the time of the merger. It was then the Rev. Mr. Weinreich came to Tinley Park to find himself pastor of a flock too large for the church structure.

The Rev. Mr. Weinreich assumed his third regular full time pastorate. In this he followed his grandfather, the late Rev. Charles Weinreich, who also served his third full time preaching assignment 1871-73 in Tinley Park.

Previously a Chemist

The younger Mr. Weinreich was a chemist for 10 years before entering the ministry. Thruout that time, he felt the need of "having my religion and my education fitted together, explained in terms of modern life and modern needs." He entered the ministry with the idea of coordinating religion and modern education for the many young people who, like himself had questions.

He began his work in Tinley Park with the prospect of needing a new church. Services have been held in the schoolhouse thru the period, and last summer a fund raising campaign began in earnest.

By September, with $10,000 in sight, construction began. Since that time the additional $20,000 has been subscribed. More than 100 of the 800 residents of Tinley Park proper have donated to the church. Of the total donors, 25 per cent are not members.

Women's Group Formed

A woman's organization was formed a year ago as preparation for going into the new building as one congregation.

Working together on the new structure, which includes all of the old church, has knit the two groups into a real union. Bells from both churches will ring from the new steeple. The bell from the burned church was damaged in the fire, so the Rev. Charles Weinreich's desk making a pattern from it. Then he took pattern, which required 238 pieces of wood, and bell to a foundry and had a recasting made.

The building is of brick trimmed with Indiana limestone. It is modern gothic in style. A 14 foot cistern will provide filtered soft water with which to carry on church housekeeping. A large narthex is designed to serve as the visiting spot of the church. The auditorium and balcony should accommodate 450.

Pulpit Made from Desk

The pulpit will be fashioned from the Rev. Charles Weinreich's desk which was made originally from Tinley Park walnut trees.

A social room, part of the old church, is situated back of the organ room. The old building is being brick veneered to correspond with the new part. Downstairs, one room is to be used for the forced air plant which will regulate heating and cooling. There is a small Sunday school room which will be converted into a kindergarten for youngsters while their parents are at church.

Village Church Used

The village church which is now part of the new structure was put up in 1897. It stood in what is now the street intersection in front of the parsonage. When the road was cut thru, the building was moved to its present site, 173rd place and 68th court.

Among leaders assisting in the building campaign are Conrad Andres, Arthur Brandau, L. E. Brandau, Cleveland and Mamie Hollstein, John Klein, William Shellhase, Benjamin and Cassie Bettenhausen, Caroline Andres, George and Mary Schult, and Frederick and Emma Maister.

Honored At A Miscellaneous Shower

A miscellaneous shower was given in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Smith in Orland Park by Mrs. Peter Koehler of Blue Island and Mrs. Walter Smith, Sunday evening, Oct. 27th in honor of Miss Bernilda Stuckey who will become the bride of Richard Wille of Tinley Park, Nov. 16. Thirty-three guests were present. Many beautiful gifts were presented to the bride-to-be. Pinocchio was played. Problems of the married and their solutions, also bits of advice to the young couple were given. A delicious luncheon was served after which a comic program was rendered.

Frankfort Home Bureau To Meet

The Frankfort Home Bureau will meet at the home of Mrs. Clarence Schrod of Frankfort on Nov. 18th. The last meeting of this group was held in the home of Mrs. Wm. Lister on Oct. 15th with 19 ladies present. Mrs. Hauffman, Will County Home Adviser gave a talk on meat and the care of meat. Mrs. Geo. Elsner gave a talk on sandwiches and fillings.

Hold Inquest

The inquest into the death of Roy Shenk, Jr., who was killed by an automobile on Wolf road, was held Saturday. Mr. Shenk, father of the boy was walking on the shoulder of the road and the boy was just on the edge of the pavement when he was hit.

Accidental death was the verdict.

Will Present Play At Mokena

A three act play "Aunt Jerushy on the War Path" will be presented by the Y. P. L., of the St. John Evangelical church of Mokena at Mokena High School gym on Friday evening, Nov. 8 at 8 p. m.

Morning Star Mission Is Now 31 Years Old

Peter McCarthy the head of the country famous Morning Star Mission of Joliet announces that his mission will observe the 31st year of its founding on Nov. 16, 17 and 18. The Mission has been presented with a gift of 100 new song books

Local Stock Men Make Early Entries

Four Will County farm boys have made the first entries from this county for the 1940 International Live Stock Exposition, to be held at the Chicago Stock Yards, November 30 to December 7.

All will exhibit purebred baby beeves of their own raising in the classes of this largest annual agricultural show. The junior contests are open to exhibitors between the ages of 10 and 20.

Harold George Reiter, age 18, of New Lenox, will exhibit two short-horn calves, both of which were high on the prize lists in the Illinois State Fair last summer, and Charles J. Francis, New Lenox, and Jack Chesnut and Donald Stephens, both from farms near Mokena, will each exhibit a steer of his own raising, that was a prize winner at the Will County 4-H Show this year.

The junior feeding contest at Chicago ranks as the leading annual event of its kind, since a majority of the 300 to 400 entries have been top winners at local and state fairs held earlier in the season.

Youths from 15 states took part in this contest last year, and from their ranks came the exhibitor of the grand champion market hog over all breeds.

On Friday, December 6, the beeves, lambs, and pigs, exhibited in the International junior show, where prices well above the open market quotations are paid in keeping with the quality of these prime meat animals.

Some 300 beeves sold in the International junior auction last year for an average price that was $3.00 per cwt. above the open market top on the same day.

New Lenox Fire Dist. Trustees Named

Trustees of the New Lenox fire district, established by a recent referendum, were appointed last Friday by County Judge Glen L. Cowing. They are John Francis, Edward Haney and Fred Scheel, each of whom represent different parts of the township, the judge said.

The trustees and Judge Cowing met following the appointment in a conference when the duties of the trustees and the method of operating the fire district were discussed.

It is planned to institute a fire protection service, operating mainly on a voluntary basis, for the entire township.

Tinley Crossing Improvement Nearing Completion

The Rock Island railroad has spent quite a few thousand dollars in safe guarding and improving the Oak Park Ave. crossing in Tinley Park. A new crossing 63 feet long built of heavy concrete slabs has just been completed. The slabs are bolted down and can be removed if the tracks need repairing. As the railroad is somewhat higher than the pavement on Oak Park Ave., the pavement was torn up on both sides of the crossing and gentle approaches have been built, the new paving being poured Thursday.

In addition to the crossing new flasher lights have been installed and electric gates will also be installed soon. The flashers will light up first as a warning and shortly afterwards the electric gates will go into action.

This new improvement is greatly appreciated by the residents of Tinley Park and the public at large.

SHOT FIRED THRU OIL PUMPS OF MOKENA GARAGE

Some unknown parties fired a shot thru the gas tank in front of the Heisner Service Station on Wolf Road in Mokena, damaging the electric pump. It is presumed this affair was a Halloween prank.

MOKENA BOARD MEETING POSTPONED TO NOV. 12

On account of members of the Mokena village board being on the election board next Tuesday, the regular meeting of the village board which was to have been held that same night, will be held Tuesday night, Nov. 12th instead.

WALTER EGGERT AND LORRAINE SIEBRANDT UNITED IN MARRIAGE

Walter Eggert of Tinley Park and Miss Lorraine Siebrandt of Frankfort were united in marriage in the Zion Lutheran church parsonage in Tinley Park, October 26th at 4 o'clock in the afternoon. The attendants were Ruth Eggert and Norman Siebrandt.

Mokena City Dads Nab Prankster Who Implicates Others

Mayor H. F. Mall and members of the Mokena village board patrolled the streets of Mokena last night on the lookout for Halloween pranksters and found a truck across a street and quite a number of cases of property damage. The truck incident was a serious one as it might have been the cause of some one getting killed or injured, as was the case in the vicinity of Palos when a motorist was ditched and killed as a result of someone placing a barricade across the highway.

Mayor Mall and the aldermen arrested one boy on suspicion and he implicated seven other pranksters. It is understood the boys are facing prosecution today.

White Store Is 22 Years Old

The White Store, Joliet's Popular Department Store is now 22 years old and in honor of the anniversary, J. J. Cohen, owner and manager of this store has been celebrating the big event this week. A big 1,000 pound cake is on display at the White Store this week and a children's party will be held the week end when the cake will be served.

Farm Fire Causes $7,000 Loss

Fire of undetermined origin broke out in a large barn on the Michael Pitterer farm on the Lincoln Highway east of the Mokena road, Tuesday morning. Mr. Pitterer was at a neighboring farm when he saw smoke coming from his barn. The Frankfort Fire Department was summoned and quickly responded with their fire truck, but the fire had made such rapid headway that the building was beyond saving. About 25 tons of hay, some grain, a thoroughbred bull and other contents of the barn and the structure itself was destroyed by the fire. A tile silo adjoining the barn was badly damaged. The loss is estimated at about $7,000, partly covered by insurance.

DEMOCRATS RESENT REPUBLICAN REMARKS

Editor News-Bulletin:

We would like to have you publish a statement which was made at the Republican Rally held in the Frankfort school gym last Monday night.

One of the speakers stated that "The Democrats are like a bad egg, smooth on the outside, rotten in the inside and when you break them, they stink."

Think of it. Whether you be Republican or Democrat, how does that statement strike you? We have attended many political meetings, but have never heard such a remark. While on the other hand let's think. In the very hall in which this meeting was held, the government (which stinks) spent money to help build this building for the purpose of giving our village a recreational center which otherwise would not have been possible.

The same man who made this statement is the same man who supported Mr. Lyons in the recent primary. He is the same man who told Mr. Green being the Barr Candidate, how he was the big utility man and now he is shouting "Green" to high heaven. What kind of a man is this? Can you believe him? If this same man is so sure that the election will be so favorable to the Republican party, why are they so desperate? Why are they using the conscription bill to try and get votes? Every statement they make is contradicted by some one of their party. The phrase "he's a liar" was mentioned many times the other evening. This means who? It is regrettable that such remarks are being made at such a critical time as the present.

PROUD DEMOCRATS

Approaching Marriage

Mr. and Mrs. Fred W. Stuckey of Frankfort announce the approaching marriage of their daughter Bernilda Elaine to Richard Wille, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Dick Wille of Tinley Park. A candle light ceremony will take place Nov. 16th at 7:30 p. m., in the St. Peter Evangelical and Reformed church in Frankfort with the Rev. G. S. Gerhold officiating.

Friends and relatives of the couple are invited to attend.

REWARD

We will pay $15 cash reward for information leading to the arrest of the party or parties who fired a 22 rifle shot thru our oil pump in front of the Mokena Service Station on Wolf Road.

Colorful Incidents Surround Registration Of Nation's Manpower for Peacetime Draft

By JOHN L. NUGENT

(Released by Western Newspaper Union.)

WASHINGTON, D. C.—America's first peacetime draft registration was marked with hundreds of interesting and colorful incidents as some 16,000,000 men between the ages of 21 and 35 listed essential information regarding themselves for use by military conscription authorities.

Good nature, lighted by the usual American wise-crack, coupled with an undertone of dead seriousness characterized the progress of the registration in all parts of the country. Minor crises arising from misunderstandings or errors cropped up in many sections, but all were swiftly ironed out. No acts of violence were reported.

The registration gave a panorama of life—a bit of the heroic, the dramatic, the comic and the routine. Below are presented some of the highlights and sidelights of the event that marked the first step toward raising the strength of America's armed forces through the selective service act.

Roy Beadle had to answer one question when he registered in Portland, Ore. His wife was a precinct registrar. "I know all the answers to these other questions," she said, "but did you put the cat out?"

When two Chinese laundrymen, Wong Sam, and Chnio Ho, of Philadelphia, sat down to register, they presented a 100-page notebook to the registrar. It contained their histories in Chinese characters—just to be certain they could answer all the questions.

"Do you mean to say you don't know your wife's maiden name?" asked a Chicago registrar. The young man shook his head. "Nope," he answered, "I've never met her folks."

School teachers acting as registrars at Nehant, Mass., drew lots for the distinction of registering John Roosevelt, youngest son of the President. Miss Mary Shea won the honor.

Draft officials announced that some men between the ages of 21 and 35 will not be registered for several months or even years. Inmates of prisons will be registered on the day of release, but not before.

Two hours after registration opened, one lad rushed up to County Judge Jarecki in the Chicago election board's office with: "What do I do now, judge? I've already lost my card!"

What's in a name? One registrar complained that an applicant had scribbled so badly she couldn't read his name.

"Can't help it," said the man. "First name's Ignatius. Never could spell it."

The first man to sign up in Superior, Wis., was Woodrow Wilson Franklin, 23, who said he was named after the World War President who proclaimed the 1917 draft.

The New York Giants football team were thrown for a loss when 25 of them entered a school to register. Marching in a body from their hotel, they were stopped by a line of anemic, narrow-shouldered clerks. Meekly they fell in at the end of the line.

Forty midgets from the New York World's fair had to stand on chairs to register. They all said they wanted to be airplane machine gunners.

Patriotism must be especially strong in Philadelphia. A 71-year-old man wanted to register . . . and a boy who was to be 21 on the following Saturday. First the registrar said, "Too old," then, "Too young."

One Oak Park, Ill., registrant demanded two cards, one for his Oak Park home and the other listing him as a resident of Wisconsin. "I'd like to use the Wisconsin address so I can get my fishing license as a resident," he explained. "It's cheaper that way."

He got one card—from Oak Park.

Children acted as guides to draftees at a Philadelphia school. They showed the men the way to the various classrooms where registration was being held.

Several women reported to registration places in South Philadelphia, Pa., thinking they had to register, too.

Several 36-year-old New Yorkers found out they were only 35 and eligible for the draft. Their birth certificates were based on the Julian calendar of Russia, but the 13-day lag of the Gregorian calendar used in the U. S. made them only 35.

There is little doubt about the constancy of Charles H. Burkhardt's love for his fiancée, Florence Heywood. When he registered in Chicago he listed Miss Heywood as the one person who will always know his address.

Warren Pershing, son of General John J. Pershing, is shown as he registered in New York city for the draft. The son of one of America's greatest and most loved soldiers, young Pershing was one of 16,404,000 young men between 21 and 35 years of age who took their first step in military conscription plans by listing essential personal information for selective service officials.

Old memories were brought back for 10 Chicago registrants. Rushing into one of the classrooms when the school was opened, they squeezed themselves behind the little desks and sang "School Days," while looking attentively at the blackboards.

Registration was temporarily postponed in Evanston, Ill., when officials ran out of ink. One man had to drive to the city hall for another bottle before the work could be resumed.

A band played lustily in front of Indian Creek school near Aurora, Ill., when the first man reported to register.

Registration called out three of Minnesota's highest officials. Gov. Harold E. Stassen, 33, Lieut. Gov. C. Elmer Anderson, 28, and Senator-Designate Joseph H. Ball, 34, had to report to register.

Surprisingly few of the top-flight movie heroes were young enough to register. Some of the leading actors who were older than the draft requirement limit of 35 years were Clark Gable, Gary Cooper, Spencer Tracy, Ronald Coleman, Cary

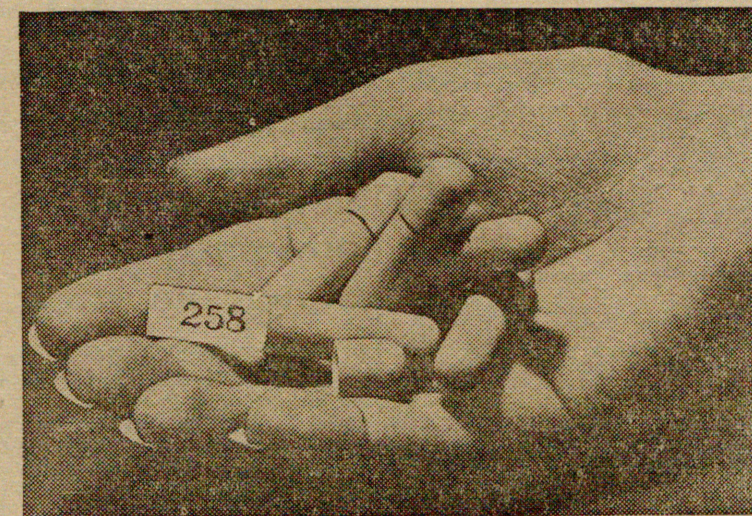

Grant, Buck Jones, George O'Brien, James Cagney and William Boyd. But prominent among Hollywood names registered were those of Robert Taylor, James Stewart, Cesar Romero, Orson Welles, Broderick Crawford, and William Holden.

A number of children grouped in front of one Chicago school and sang, "You're in the Army Now" so loud it could be heard for blocks.

Officials had a hard time writing in the name of one registrant who was born in the Philippine islands. His name is Hermonegildo Sobrevilla Pagulayan.

Here's Next Step in Conscription

Here are actual samples of the capsules used in the national lottery to determine order numbers for prospective conscripts under the selective service act. Number 258, as shown above, was the first number drawn during the wartime lottery in 1917. Numbers are printed on white cardboard and inserted inside the capsules.

Now that registration is over, 16,404,000 young men between the ages of 21 and 35 are asking, "What's next?"

For many of them, draft registration means the beginning of 10 to 15 years of obligation for military service. For many it may be months or even years before their "number" will be called, requiring them to fill out the detailed questionnaire and report for service.

More than 6,500 local draft boards throughout the country are preparing to give each man a number. Every registrant will be informed by mail of his number, but each local draft board will also print and post the entire list of names and numbers. Registrants are required to find out their number, even if they are not notified by mail.

Lottery Drawing. The order in which men are to be called into service will be determined by the lottery drawing held in Washington between October 26 and November 2. Numbers are placed in capsules pictured above, which are then drawn one-by-one to determine the order in which the men will be called.

For example, if the first number drawn is 97, then each man numbered 97 in each draft district will be in the first group summoned. Within a few days he will receive an eight-page questionnaire which must be filled out and returned.

Answers furnished by these questionnaires will form the basis for classification of the registrant. Health, responsibilities, occupation and religious convictions are factors which will determine whether the registrant shall be subject to immediate or deferred call.

How soon any given registrant may be called depends upon the position of his serial number in Washington. The law limits the number who may be inducted into service in any one year to 900,000 men. Present plans call for the drafting of 400,000 men by March 15, 1941.

Every man who registered has several definite duties and obligations he must perform. He must always carry his certificate of registration. He should watch for his serial number and the order number assigned to him after the drawing in Washington.

Every registrant must notify the local draft board of any changes in his address, employment, dependents, citizenship and physical condition. He should also keep in touch with his local board to see that he does not miss any notices to report for questioning or examination.

Cod Liver Oil For Treatment Of Skin Ulcers

By DR. JAMES W. BARTON

(Released by Western Newspaper Union.)

JUST why some ulcers on the skin are so indolent or slow in healing is often hard to understand. Sometimes eating more of the foods containing lime or taking lime direct—calcium lactate, gluconate, and a specially prepared chloride—stimulate old ulcers to heal.

Vitamin D as it occurs in cod liver oil has been found effective in healing old or chronic bone inflammations—osteomyelitis.

The bone is scraped out thoroughly and the cod liver oil fills in the hollow left by the removal of the diseased bone. It was only natural therefore that physicians, particularly skin specialists, should try using cod liver oil in the treatment of old or chronic ulcers of the skin.

Dr. James R. Driver, Dr. G. W. Brinkley and Dr. Maurice Sullivan, Cleveland, outline their method in the Urological and Cutaneous (Skin) Review.

"After experimenting with various formulas for application to indolent ulcers this one was found to be satisfactory: "Commercial cod liver oil—88 per cent.

"White wax—12 per cent." The wax prevents the too rapid absorption of the oil in the dressings and when the dressing is removed it usually clings to the dressing, thus making it possible to prevent injuring the healing surface.

A generous amount of ointment, usually one-fourth inch in thickness, is spread on gauze or muslin, then covered with oiled silk or oiled paper, and bandaged in place. A warm, moist chamber about the ulcer is thus produced.

Precaution to Be Taken.

Following the first application a marked activity (ulcer is no longer indolent) is generally set up, resulting in an increased amount of pus and the liquid part of blood. The ulcer soon assumes a ruddy, clear, healthy appearance and new surface skin can be seen growing in from the margins of the ulcer. When this condition is noted, the dressing need be changed only every four or five days (instead of daily), and extreme care must be used to avoid injury, by wiping with cotton or gauze.

If any of the pus gets on surrounding skin it should be wiped off with soap and water.

Cause of Chills And Treatment

A PHYSICIAN walking along the street one morning felt some chills run down his back and throughout his body. He turned back home, removed his clothing, and climbed into bed. The family were astonished and naturally asked the reason for going to bed.

"I don't know what is the matter. I felt the chills and I find my temperature is up 2 degrees. I do not feel sick but something is likely attacking me and by going to bed instead of staying on my feet, I'll give my heart more strength to fight off whatever is coming."

A physician was called in, made an examination of heart, lungs, abdomen, but as there was no pain or other symptoms he was unable to locate any trouble aside from a little redness of the throat. The physician remained in bed almost a week as the heart rate was up to 120 most of this time. No definite ailment occurred.

When something is causing trouble inside the body anywhere, the blood from the surface goes to this point to fight it. This causes the chill or chilliness of the skin and is a distinct warning that some trouble—slight or severe—is present.

A chill, for instance, is usually a sign of a cold, of influenza, pneumonia or other acute ailments. The fever that follows the chill is really the effort of the body to fight off the ailment.

Bed, a hot drink, with hot water bottles at the beginning and end of the attack, is the best treatment.

Don't neglect a chill. It may mean very little, but, on the other hand, it may be the first sign of a severe infection.

Deletion of newsreel attack on Kelly-Nash machine a Chicago boomerang . . . All but one of leading Tennessee newspapers supported Willkie, despite TVA.

(Bell Syndicate—WNU Service.)

WASHINGTON. — Censorship is something wonderful in Chicago. The lads know all the ropes. They not only use censorship of movies and newsreels to suppress what they do not want, but they can give that famous old Boston board of elders cards and spades, because they know how to use censorship to advertise something they want boosted!

Everybody remembers what a grand deal the old Boston censors of a few years back gave certain salacious books, for one thing, and the articles of Henry L. Mencken was then writing in his magazine, for another.

Mencken worked the thing as a racket. He would call the attention of the censors, by some sort of publicity, to the audacity of something he had written in his magazine. Then the censors would bar the sale of that issue in Boston. Whereupon in every hamlet in the United States folks would read about this article that had caused the suppression of the magazine in the "Hub." Of course, everybody who read this was curious to know just what it was that had been suppressed, and some of them would actually buy the magazine to find out.

CENSORS BOOSTED SALES

But the publicity did not stop there. Mencken would thereupon induce some youngsters in Boston to sell the magazine on the streets in defiance of the censors' ruling. They would be arrested, and there would be another story. When you consider that the magazine Henry was then publishing was one of comparatively small circulation, it is not unlikely that several times he tripled its circulation merely by getting the censors to blacklist that particular edition.

There is no evidence that any of the publishers of salacious books used the same method, though it is certain that they profited by it whether intentionally or not.

The point of all this is that the Chicago censors a few weeks back suppressed for Chicago showing a movie in which close political friends of the organization here are interested. After a nine-day wonder, in which every newspaper in Chicago joined in the clamor, the movie was released—with more publicity than any movie had received in this area since "Gone With the Wind."

More recently the Chicago police censors deleted from a newsreel attacks on the Kelly-Nash machine here by Dwight Green, Republican candidate for senator, and by Wendell Willkie. This time they misfired a little. The resulting publicity caused an immediate restoration of the cuts!

WILLKIE SUPPORTED

It is rather interesting that the New Deal attacks on Wendell Willkie did not go to the merits of government versus private ownership of the electric industry, but confined themselves almost exclusively to the fact that Willkie companies fought the TVA, and in particular that they used questionable means and methods in fighting a public ownership referendum in the city of Chattanooga, Tenn.

It is also interesting that most of the people who ought to know about the details of these various fights did not seem to take these criticisms of Willkie very seriously.

In the state of Tennessee the eight outstanding newspapers, according to a recent survey by Time magazine, are: Memphis Commercial Appeal, Memphis Press-Scimitar, Chattanooga Times, Chattanooga Free Press, Knoxville News-Sentinel, Knoxville Journal, Nashville Banner, Nashville Tennessean.

Of these eight newspapers, all but one, the Nashville Tennessean, advocated the election of Willkie. It is interesting to note, also, that the Tennessean, the only one of the eight which is for Roosevelt, was in trouble recently, was aided by federal funds, and is now being run by Silliman Evans.

PROMINENT DEMOCRAT

Evans is a fairly young newspaper man who came to Washington from the Southwest shortly before the New Deal came into power. He was given a place as fourth assistant postmaster general under James A. Farley. Later, when the federal government began to have something to say about the operations of the Maryland Casualty Co., he was put in virtual charge of that Baltimore concern. Still later he became head of the Tennessean.

The whole point of this is that all the outstanding newspapers in Tennessee, which by any stretch of the imagination could be said to be uncontrolled by the federal government, were for Willkie, although this is the state in which most of Willkie's spectacular opposition to the TVA and government operation centered

IMPROVED UNIFORM INTERNATIONAL SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

JESUS DECLARES HIS MISSION

LESSON TEXT—Luke 4:16-30.
GOLDEN TEXT—For the Son of man is come to seek and to save that which was lost.—Luke 19:10.

Ready for service! It's an exciting and auspicious occasion when the one who has prepared for a life work is ready to set forth on his mission. Joy and sorrow mingle; encouragement and opposition both appear and become his constant companions. Recognizing God and following His Word is of greatest importance on such a day.

The mission upon which Jesus entered on the day of our lesson was important far beyond any service of man, for, while He set out upon an earthly ministry of doing good, it led to the cross where He wrought out deliverance for the captives of Satan. That day found Him back with His own people in the synagogue in His home town.

I. Prophecy Fulfilled (vv. 16-22).
It is significant and appropriate that Jesus' declaration of Himself as the fulfillment of Isaiah 61:1, 2, was made in the synagogue on the Sabbath day. He met with the people in the house and at the time set apart for God's worship. He opposed spiritual deadness, the misinterpretation of the truth, the distortion of religious principles; but He was not, as some would have us believe, a religious free lance who despised the established worship of His people.

Having been prepared by the years of silence, and more particularly by the baptism and the temptation in the wilderness, He appeared at the synagogue in Nazareth to declare Himself as the fulfillment of the prophecy.

Those who teach that Jesus was only a young Jewish teacher with a new philosophy of life have evidently not read the Scriptures. He knew Himself to be God's Son come into the world to bring the good news of salvation by His own blood to poor, sin-captive, blinded and bruised humanity. He is the Saviour!

Look at Isaiah 61:1, 2 and note that Jesus stopped reading before the end of the sentence. "The day of vengeance of our God" will come when Christ returns. This is the day of grace. Sinners are urged to accept God's love now, and thus to escape the terrible day of judgment.

II. Faith Recognized (vv. 23-27).

The Jews gloried in the fact that they were the chosen people of God and insisted it was through the exercises of their formal worship that God's blessing must be received. Now this one whom they erroneously call "Joseph's son" (v. 22) comes to disturb them in their self-satisfaction. Seeing their rising resentment, He declares by striking words and example that the benefits and blessings of God come through faith and not because of any racial relationship.

The glory of Christianity is that its grace and power are to be received by faith and are fully and freely available to the simplest and poorest of men. Race, position, wealth, education, have nothing to do with it. All too often they are a hindrance, although they ought rather to be a help.

Every reader of these notes, regardless of age, education, wealth or any other condition or circumstance of life, stands on an equal footing before God and has a full and unlimited opportunity to take right now, by faith in Christ, all that God has for him—salvation, spiritual strength and usefulness, joy, peace, and all the other blessings of God. Will you do it?

III. Truth Rejected (vv. 28-30).

Like a torch cast into gunpowder, His words set off all the explosive power of narrow bigotry, national pride, jealousy, and they were all "filled with wrath" (v. 28).

They rejected not only the truth of His words, but they rejected Him who is the Truth (John 14:6). Note it carefully—in rejecting or neglecting His Word, you reject and neglect Him.

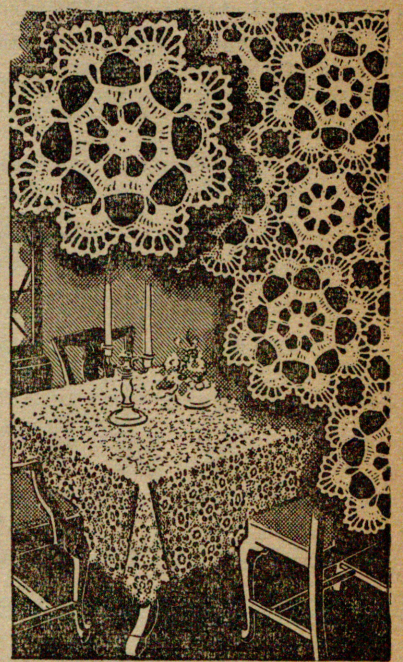

Observe that until the time had come for Him to be "delivered" (Rom. 4:25) into the hands of wicked men to be crucified they could not touch Him. There is no more majestic scene than that in verse 30 where the Son of God turned at the brow of the hill and, walking through the midst of the crowd, went His way.

What have I to fear at the hands of wicked and gainsaying men as long as I follow this all-powerful Son of God? He that is for us and in us is greater than he (the devil) that is in the world (I John 4:4). We follow the victorious Christ, who quietly but majestically walks through the ranks of His helpless enemies and goes "His way." Will you join us—today?

CHAPTER XXXI—Continued

Lynn quieted, turned to Chuck and answered: "I've lost the man I loved. I know what that means, and I didn't have a little child to consider. There is such a thing as decency, Chuck. You may not know it, but there is." All the suffering and hurt of the last year shone in Lynn's white face. Chuck, looking, suddenly felt sorry for her.

"I didn't know you care . . . that much."

Her smile was pitiful. Chuck watched her for a little, curiously. Chuck spoke at last: "What do you want me to do?" There was defeat in his voice.

Lynn sat up, her hands clasped together: "Give her a chance. I don't know whether she still loves you, Chuck. It has been a year. Find her and Buddy. Go to her, alone. Go honestly. Ask her to come back. Be honest. Don't steal Buddy from her!"

Chuck was silent as he watched her. Then he got up wearily. "I promise." His voice was dead. "Don't you love her any more, Chuck?" Lynn's voice was full of fear.

"Yes." His face colored. "I do. I suppose that's why I'm so bitter. She almost killed me, Lynn!" He turned away so that Lynn could not see his face.

Chuck held out his hand. "What name is she using Lynn?" "You'll play fair?" "I swear it!"

CHAPTER XXXII

On the second day Chuck called her at the shop in the morning and asked her to meet him at luncheon. "I'm at the Astor. Under another name. We better eat lunch in my room. I'm leaving town and I want to see you first."

When Lynn walked into Chuck's room two hours later she saw he had not slept. He was nervous, kept looking at his watch. He motioned her into a chair.

"My plane leaves at 2:30 P. M. Our lunch will be along in a moment. They're near New Orleans. I just found out. My man's been working night and day since you told me!"

Just then the waiter brought their food and they were silent as he served it. When the door closed Chuck began again immediately: "I'll do as you say. It won't work, probably. But I'll keep my side of the bargain!"

Lynn's eyes filled with tears: "Chuck, of course, it won't work if you really don't want Helen and Buddy back!" She raised her hands in protest. "Please listen to me! Would you want Helen to take you back only because of Buddy?" The expression on his face was answer enough. "She'll come, if she knows you want her to!"

She tried hard to make Chuck understand. He was making a great effort. Lynn knew how bitter was his Austin pride. He must care a great deal. When she left him she said:

"Good luck, and happiness!" He gave her hand a squeeze, leaned over and kissed her cheek. He could not speak for the lump in his throat.

Four days before Christmas she lay in her bed trying to summon courage enough to get up when her bell rang. She jumped out of bed, threw on a robe and hurried to the door.

A telegraph boy handed in a message. With trembling fingers she opened it. It was short, quite un-explanatory.

"Merry Christmas, see you soon." It was signed, "Chuck, Helen, Buddy."

It was Mme. Reanoud who solved Lynn's Christmas problem for her. "Why don't you trim your tree and have some of the kids from the old apartment building next to you in for a party Christmas day?" she asked. "They could use a party, from the way they look. Better give them meat and potatoes instead of ice cream though. They seem to need it."

Lynn was enthusiastic over the idea. "I'll do it! I'll invite them tonight."

"You better start shopping, young woman! That's more important!"

It turned out that Terry was a harbor of refuge when Lynn came to the shopping problem. He drove her to the stores, here and there.

When Terry and Lynn came back into the living room, he took her hand:

"Can I give you your ring, Lynn? For Christmas?"

Her eyes were black as she spoke: "I wish I could say yes, Terry, but I can't."

"It's the last time I'm going to ask. I have it here in my pocket." He took out a gorgeous yellow diamond which had been in his family for years. "Empress Josephine once wore that, young woman, and it isn't good enough for you."

"You're sweet, Terry." Lynn looked at the gorgeous stone laying in his hand. She shook her head and smiled up at him.

Lynn determined not to think of the tree which Wild had trimmed for her a year ago. She turned restlessly. Somebody was coming down the hall. There was a knock on her door. She got up to open it.

"Merry Christmas!" cried two voices.

It was Chuck and Helen. They came in with a rush, and Lynn was in their arms. Helen was crying and Chuck was swallowing hard. It was a long time before anybody was coherent enough to explain all that had happened.

"Where's Buddy?"

"Home, asleep in his nursery!" Helen said. And Chuck, hearing her, kissed her. She had said "home" of Austin Manor. Said it naturally and happily.

Later, just before they were to leave, Helen tried to say to Lynn some things that were in her heart.

"If I can ever pay my debt to you, Lynn!"

Chuck tried to make a formal speech, and Lynn was between laughter and tears.

"We can't stay, darling. There's a supper party tonight, and Buddy will have us up at dawn." Helen's face suddenly sobered: "But we had to see you for a few minutes. If you could see Buddy with his father, Lynn!" She squeezed Chuck's arm. Then Helen tried to tell Lynn what had happened down South.

"I was almost at the end of my rope, Lynn," she said. "Chuck got to us one night after Buddy had gone to bed. He just walked into that trailer, and I thought I would die in that moment."

"I didn't think she was glad to see me at first!" Chuck interposed. "I was so stunned, I couldn't move!"

"Then I did just what you told me to. I walked right up and kissed her!" He was sitting with his arm about his wife as they talked. Helen patted his arm:

"I think I cried for an hour before I could even speak. I had been so lonely and afraid. I don't know how I ever stood it!"

"We'll forget all about it now, Helen."

"I hope I won't forget what I learned," Helen said with a sincere note in her voice.

"Neither of us will," Chuck promised. "We've had our lesson."

"And Mr. Mortimer?" Lynn asked.

"I telephoned him from New Orleans. He was pleased. He's a nice person, Lynn." Then she added: "I want to see you soon, just you and me, so we can take our hair down and have a good talk. We're sailing for Algiers for a little vacation next month, Lynn."

"It's to be our second honeymoon." Then he added: "The family's as pleased as anything about it all."

Then Helen gave Lynn a little box. "This is for you, darling, from Chuck and me. I bought it in Mexico. I hope you like it."

Lynn opened the box immediately. It was a lovely silver bracelet set with turquoise, the fine carving was worn almost smooth by the many beautiful women through the ages who had owned the handsome ornament.

"It's . . . beautiful!" Lynn put it on her slim wrist.

When Helen kissed Lynn good-by she whispered: "I've got a plan, you'll hear about it soon. Before we go away!"

CHAPTER XXXIII

Lynn woke the next morning with that wonderful feeling that something exciting and unusual was going to happen. When she opened her eyes she could see through the bedroom door the glistening Christmas tree rising high to the ceiling.

All morning Lynn worked hard. She peeled quantities of potatoes for her guests, fixed the squash for baking. It was fun. By noon she was improvising a table.

Marty had promised to drop in for the party, and he came in puffing, before the children began to arrive. His arms were piled high with bundles, he had a Christmas stocking for every guest, filled with oranges, candy and toys. And he had a gift for Lynn. It was a pretty compact.

"Merry Christmas, Kid!" Marty said, dropping the bundles onto the couch.

They just had time to put the stockings under the tree when the first guest arrived. Myrtle Price, an artist who lived above Lynn came in to help, and soon the studio was turned into a gay turmoil of wild youngsters having the time of their lives.

Marty was a genius with the children. He got them over their first shyness. He directed their games while Lynn and Myrtle worked in the kitchen to finish the dinner. They were having a grand time. Myrtle borrowed chairs from everybody up and down the hall. Two boys across the way stopped in to see the fun, stayed on to watch that the youngsters got their dinner.

Gradually the apartment and its tumult became the center of life of the big, ramshackle studio building. Everybody left in the place had to poke his head into the door to see the fun. The children ate and ate until Lynn was afraid they'd be ill.

The uninvited guests helped clear the tables, push the tables back against the walls and then everybody sat down on the floor. Marty had disappeared. Shortly there was a wild shout. He came out of the bedroom a rotund Santa Claus with a long, white beard.

The children yelled and screamed in their delight. Then Marty began giving out the little gifts.

"I haven't had so much fun in years," he told Lynn.

The bracelets and the dollar watches Terry had bought sent the crowd into mild hysteria. Of course, three of the watches were promptly broken, for the boys wound them too tightly. But it was all breathless and spontaneous. Toward evening some of the mothers came for their children and Lynn gave them sandwiches of the leftover turkey.

"It's the loveliest Christmas I've ever had," Lynn said as she and Marty dropped down for a moment on the couch to rest.

Of course, nobody wanted to go home. It was dark now, and the lighted tree was lovelier in the dim studio. Art started some carols and soon the child voices were raised in song, a little off tune perhaps, but they loved it. Art went across the hall and got his accordion and shortly the whole building was shaking as the children danced to his tunes and the older people sat back enjoying the fun. Yes, it was a good day.

Nobody heard a knock on the door. Finally Marty did, and opened it. It was a messenger boy. A cable.

"From Rene, bless his heart. He wouldn't forget!" Lynn cried as she took it. The boy grinned as he watched the dancing children. Lynn pressed some candy into his hand and Marty gave him a dollar.

Lynn tore open the cable casually. It was wonderful that a word of greeting could come to her so far. Marty turned to her, stopped short. Lynn's smile died.

"Marty!" She was trembling. He took the cable from her hand. Only a few words.

"Bouchier seriously ill, American Hospital; come." It was signed by Dr. Antonio Marelli, in Rome:

Lynn held on to Marty's arm. "We mustn't spoil their party. Keep them going." She went into the bedroom and closed the door. She sat down on the narrow bed, piled high with children's coats and hats, and reread the cable. Rene must be desperately ill, or the doctor would not have cabled. Marty found her there a few minutes later.

"I'd never forgive myself if I didn't go . . . and anything happened." . . . She looked up distractedly. "He can't die, Marty."

"No," Marty and his Santa Claus beard awry, wiped his forehead with a trembling hand. "He can't die. He's too important to the world, Lynn. He's a great painter! It would be terrible . . ."

Poor Rene. Alone, ill, maybe dying. She forced a smile to her lips, but her eyes were bright with tears. Shortly, the party began to break up. It was a long process. Hats and coats had to be rescued, rubbers and galoshes straightened out. Marty, watching Lynn's face, was glad she had this distraction. They finally departed, a disheveled, happy, noisy crowd. Then quiet settled over the apartment like a pall. Marty went out to buy a newspaper and Lynn was alone.

Mechanically she tried to bring a little order out of the chaos in the apartment. Marty was not gone long, but when he came back he had everything planned.

"There's a sailing tomorrow, but no use to take it. It's a slow boat. Better wait for the Normandie. She sails Thursday."

"That's two days!"

"It can't be helped."

"I'll get you a tourist class ticket. You can go straight from Havre to Rome."

"It will be over a week, Marty."

"Yes."

"I hope I'm in time."

"You will be. He'll probably be all right by the time you get there."

"If I only knew how serious it is!"

"Shall I telephone the hospital?"

"Will it cost a lot?"

"Not too much, Lynn. I'll try."

Later they both went out to the corner drug store, and in an hour Marty had the call through. He got an Italian clerk who worked in the store to speak with the hospital in Rome. It was a short conversation.

"He's got pneumonia," the boy informed the two who waited. He told the hospital that Lynn was sailing on the Normandie.

"How is he?" Lynn demanded.

"They say he's pretty sick." That was all.

Marty and Lynn went back to her apartment, and Lynn got out her suit cases.

"I'll go to the bank tomorrow morning, Marty as soon as it opens and get the money."

"Don't worry about that. I'll get a ticket, there won't be any trouble this time of year. Reservations are light. I'll have the boss see about your passport. You'll have to get a picture. Do that first thing. We'll have to pull strings to get it in time."

"I haven't any idea how long I'll be gone. What shall I do about my apartment?" Lynn was distraught.

"Better get it in order, pack everything, and leave it. When you see how things are, write and I'll have your stuff sent on to storage. That is, if you stay," he added.

DICTATOR'S MENU

"Correspondents could see the dictators dining in the train, but could not see what they were eating."—News item.)

Benito—I'll bet they'd like to know what we're eating.

Adolf—Public curiosity is a queer thing.

Benito—Maybe we should announce the menu.

Adolf—Let 'em guess. What kind of soup is this?

Benito—English beef soup.

Adolf (indignantly)—Now look here . . .

Benito—You'll like it. I had two Englishmen boiled in it especially for you.

Adolf (skeptically)—You and who else?

Benito—You'll like the fish course.

Adolf—What kind of fish?

Benito—Brenner Pass pickerel.

Adolf—I thought we were going to have man-eating shark. I love it.

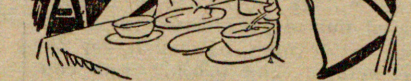

Some of my best friends are man-eating sharks. What about that Suez shad I asked you to get?

Benito—Ahem. It was out of season.

Adolf—Now for the meat course. What is it?

Benito—Lamb.

Adolf (excitedly)—Lamb! Lamb for Adolf Hitler?

Benito—I ordered lion, of course. But there was some mistake. I feel as out of place with lamb as you do.

Adolf—Take it away! It's a wonder you don't serve breast of dove.

Benito—How about a little turkey?

Adolf—I've been after that all year.

Benito—Do you care for tripe?

Adolf—It depends on who prepares it.

Benito—Well, if anybody can prepare tripe I can.

Adolf—Haven't you any frogs' legs?

Benito—If anybody has frogs' legs you should. How about a helping of spinach. It is full of iron and is great for your strength.

Adolf—Spinach may be all that it's cracked up to be, but I wish I knew what vegetables those British were eating.

Benito (suddenly)—Ah, I forgot! We're having lobster. I love lobster. It looks so warlike. Do you like it boiled or broiled?

Adolf (fiercely)—I eat it shell and all!

Benito—Do you really like it that way?

Adolf—No, but it makes me seem tough.

Benito—Now for the dessert. Do you like cake?

Adolf—Me, a cake eater!

Benito—Do you care for raspberries?

Adolf—No, but you and I stand a swell chance of having to stand for 'em!

This will be the first meeting of the Women's Society in their new church and they will be nappy to greet their many friends.

The business meeting will start at 1:30 p.m. Members please be prompt.

Wetomachick Camp Fire
The Oct. meetings have kept the Wetomachick Camp Fire Girls very busy. On Oct. 3rd they had as their guest, Mrs. Hunter, from the Chicago office and she gave much information. Rose Marie Vauter entertained by playing her piano accordion.

The next meeting was on the 10th and it was strictly business.

Then on Oct. 17, the girls received their ties and started to hem them. Dorothy Luchene played the piano while Lorraine Cupp, Florence Ceiguk, and Eleanor Machtemes sang.

The last meeting on Oct. 24, the girls received their membership cards and one honor bead each. They had as their guests, Mrs. Ringberg, Mrs. Cushman, Mrs. Crist, and Mrs. Wm. Semmler, of Mokena.

Mrs. Semmler, who was a guardian a few years ago, came in her ceremonial gown, talked to us, and presented to us our charter.

Dorothy Luchene read the "Creed for Camp Fire Girls", and several of the girls were called upon to tell what the ranks and crafts are.

The next meeting is a party on Hallowe'en at Mrs. Ringberg's house.

Mr. Charles H. Wolf of 159th Street is a member on the Draft Board of Selective Service covering this territory.

Edw. Henke who has been confined to bed with a throat infection the past week, was able to be up for the first time Wednesday. He is improving nicely.

The village board at a meeting decided not to go ahead with a proposed water main extension for the time being. The project was considered for some time.

Wm. Funk, H. C. Vogt, John G. Poorman and Wilbert Funk who recently returned from a trip, made over 3,000 miles in Colorado, North Dakota and other western and northwestern states. They made trips in special chartered bus and saw many points of interest. They report a wonderful trip and time.

William Edward Roeker, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Roeker, was baptized Sunday, October 27th. Sponsors were Edwin Manzke and Harold Cowens, Rev. Alb. Buddenhagen, pastor of the Zion Lutheran church officiated.

Mrs. Allen Jeffrey of Seattle, Wash., spent last Thursday with her cousin, Mrs. Roy Hannum and husband, Mrs. Allen is Mrs. Hannum's only girl cousin.

ORLAND PARK

Friday night, October the twenty-fifth, the Orland Park Legion Auxiliary held a Bunco and card party which was well attended. Many nice prizes were given. The table decorations carrying out the Hallowe'en motive were cleverly arranged by Mrs. Peggy Frech of Oak Lawn.

For the month of October, Mrs. Alice Sorley the rehabilitation chairman arranged for a party at the Veterans' Facility at 22nd at Harlem sts., also one for the World War nurses, patients at Norberry Sanatorium, Jacksonville, Ill. Contributions to Hines Hospital were three thousand match packs, a suit of clothes and a half dozen shirts.

Saturday, October ninth, the Orland Park Legion Post No. 526 will sponsor a dance at Goodings Grove to which the public are cordially invited. The guests will be assured of good refreshments, as Mr. Eva Burt of the Auxiliary will have charge of the refreshment stand. Door prizes will be given.

FRANKFORT

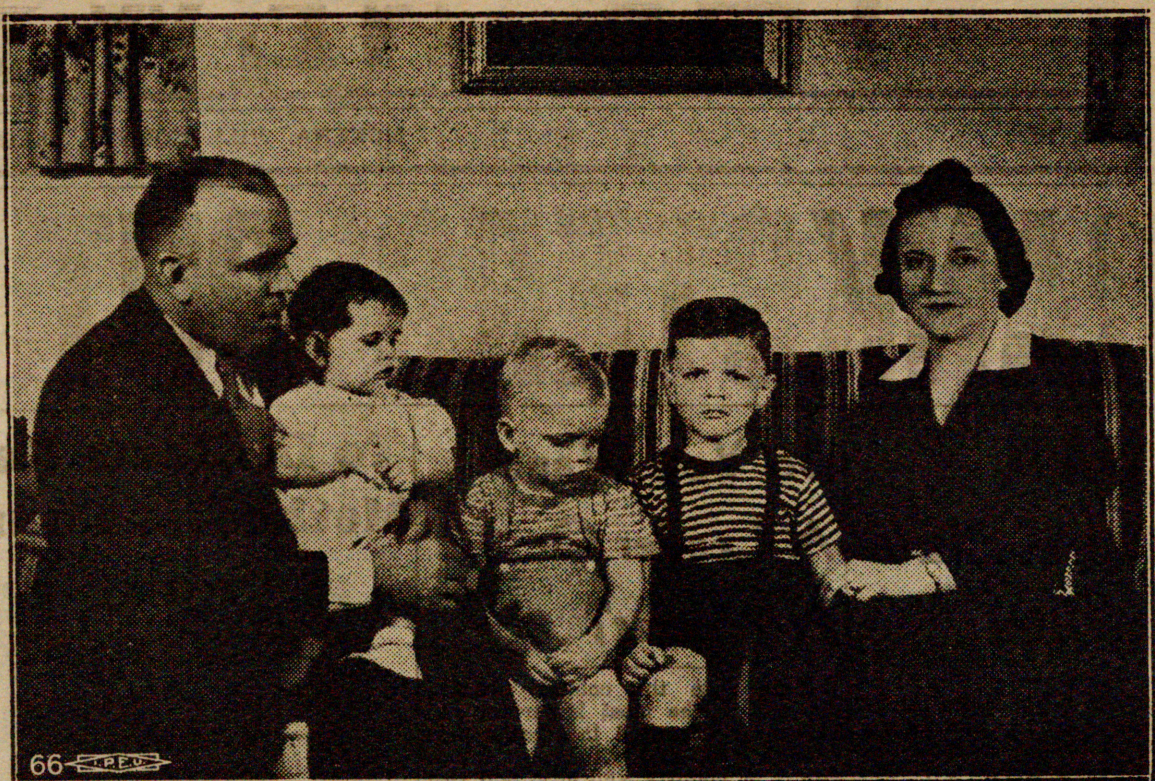

The basketball season for the Frankfort School will open on Friday evening, Nov. 8th in the local gymnasium. The visiting team will be the Crete Public School. The first game will start at 7:30 p. m.

Season tickets are now on sale and they may be secured from anyone attending the Frankfort School. The prices are: 50c for Grade and High School children and 80c or 2 for $1.50 for Adults. The tickets are good for all ten games played at home; other wise, a charge of 10 and 15 cents will be made for each game.

We want our physical education program to be self-supporting. Can we depend upon your help and encouragement.

Prosperity . . .

National prosperity and success. Pray for the prosperity of our country. Pray that the Divine Presence may still guide and bless our chief magistrate; those associated with his executive trust, and our National Judiciary; give to our Congress wisdom and uphold our Nation with the right arm of His righteousness.

God give us men. A time like this demands strong minds, great hearts, true faith and ready hands. Men whom the lust of office does not kill, men whom the spoils of office cannot buy, men who possess opinions and a will, men who love honor; men who cannot lie.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE CHURCHES
"Probation After Death" was the subject of the Lesson-Sermon in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, on Sunday, October 27.

The Golden Text was, "Let us not be weary in well doing; for in due season we shall reap, if we faint not" (Galatians 6:9).

Among the citations which comprised the Lesson-Sermon was the following from the Bible: "For I delivered unto you first of all that which I also received, how that Christ died for our sins according to the scriptures; And that he was buried, and that he rose again the third day according to the scriptures: And that he was seen of Cephas, then of the twelve: After that he was seen of above five hundred brethren at once" (1 Corinthians 15:3-6).

The Lesson-Sermon also included the following passages from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy: "Jesus' unchanged physical condition after what seemed to be death was followed by his exaltation above all material conditions; and this exaltation explained his ascension, and revealed unmistakably a probationary and progressive state beyond the grave" (p. 48).

TINLEY PK GARDEN CLUB

The October meeting of the Garden Club was held at the home of Mrs. Fred Geobel with a large attendance. The study period under the direction of Mrs. W. Funk was very interesting with gourd, fruit and flower arrangements both colorful and beautiful.

The business meeting was called to order by the President Mrs. Harry Mager who gave a nice talk and thanked all the officers and members for their fine cooperation during the past year. At the close of the meeting, the hostess served a delightful lunch of cakes, doughnuts and coffee. (We all liked the cany too. The next meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Henry Kehres.

Auxiliary News

The Oct. 25 meeting was held at the home of Edna Clark. In the absence of the president, Myrtle Wolf the 1st vice president presided. A new member, Margaret Elmore was welcomed.

Ruth Frietag, Junior Advisor gave a report on the Junior's meeting last Saturday and their installation of officers. Mildred Plannery, president; Joy Berg, secretary; Ruth Ceithamel, chaplain; Marjorie Hagedorn, historian; Barbara Ann Frietag, sergeant-at-arms. Frances Borden was installing officer.

The dedication of colors will be at our next meeting which will be in the new church basement. The meeting night was changed for the one meeting to Thursday, Nov. 7, instead of the usual Friday.

As this was social night all other business was dispensed with. Coffee and cake were served and bunco was played. The hostesses were Edna Clark, Ruth Cushman and Frances Ceithamel.

Don't forget the bunco to be given in the school auditorium, Nov. 28.
Last Thursday, Mrs. John Swisher had three girlhood friends whom she had not seen in fifteen years, as dinner guests.

Dr. and Mrs. Fred Swisher of Denver, Colo., are visiting at the John Swisher home.

Last Thursday evening a bridal shower was given for Armida Gini by a group of girls at the home of Mrs. Anna Darby. There were about fifteen girls present. She received many beautiful gifts. Bunco was the chief diversion of the evening and after the presents were opened a buffet lunch was served.

Mr. and Mrs. Oliver entertained 40 guests at a Hallowe'en masquerade Sat. night. Every one enjoyed the roast pig which was the main dish of the evening. The guests were from Tinley Park, Chicago and Willow Springs.

Cheskchamay Camp Fire Girls

On October 28th Mrs. Helen Swisher, guardian and Mrs. Crist, assistant guardian, and the girls went to Tinley Creek for an outdoor supper. The girls cooked the supper and ate around a big fire which they built. We sang songs and told Hallowe'en Ghost Stories. We also learned our camp fire cheer and played games.

At our next meeting on November 4th we are going to start our Camp Fire Scrapbook.

We left for home about 6:30. A good time was had by all.

Mrs. Crist attended the classes on symbolism and camp craft at camp fire headquarters.

W. B. A. News

The Women's Benefit Association held their meeting Thursday evening, Oct. 23, 1940 with Pres. Mrs. Mildred Sayre presiding. Mrs. Lillian White our district deputy was our guest for the evening. The lucky blanket winners were 1st, Mrs. Agnes Peterson; 2nd, Mrs. Dulcie Murphy. There will be three awards next meeting on account of our next meeting being held on Thursday, Nov. 14. The second Thursday of the month. Bunco was played and all enjoyed themselves.

"THE SEA HAWK", starring the superb performances of Brenda Marshall and Errol Flynn, in a story of a swash-buckling 16th Century Robin Hood of the high seas, will be featured on the Roxy Theatre screen, at Lockport, Sunday, Monday and Tuesday.

Nation Must Return To Christ

A day of financial, moral and spiritual reckoning lies ahead for America unless millions in the nation penitently turn to God, Dr. Walter A. Maier declared last Sunday in his opening address inaugurating the eighth season of the coast to coast Lutheran Hour.

"No nation can flaunt the requirements of righteousness, justice and truth continually and brazenly as we have," Dr. Maier asserted, "without suffering the consequences of its own folly. The rebellion against God in our country is greater than ever before, with atheism in some of our political trends, atheism in public education, and atheism in a widespread philosophy and program which boasts that we can get along without God. Whoever is elected president next week should, as one of his first official acts, set a day of national repentance."

To combat anti-Christian destructive forces, Dr. Maier urged a voluntary conscription of the churches' use for Christ and the spiritual defense program for the churches. More than ever before, he asserted, the prime objective of the church forces in America is to preach the Gospel of Jesus Christ.

The failure to carry out this commission and the substitution of "current event" talks for sermons on sin and grace are largely responsible for the fact that in the ten years covered by the last census all large Protestant denominations except one were forced to record a decrease in membership. Dr. Maier referred to the Lutheran church which, according to government statistics, showed a gain of about nine per cent in a comparison of the 1920 and 1936 census.

The Lutheran Hour message will be heard every Sunday over more than 200 stations and in 11 countries. Spanish broadcasts include the West Indies, Central and South America and the Philippine Islands. Dr. Maier announced the intention to increase the scope of Lutheran Hour broadcasting until it becomes worldwide in extent, particularly through the addition of stations in Europe, Asia and Africa.

FRANKFORT

Mrs. Herbert Kohlhaugen

Loughran Indicts Burke In Broadcast

In his Monday night broadcast, Mr. Loughran again put States Attorney Burke before the bar of public opinion; he asked Mr. Burke why he had permitted slot machines to run rampant in Joliet and Will County. I call to your attention that slot machines and vice were flourishing in Will County from the time you took office in 1936 up to within two weeks ago, Mr. Loughran said. You may recall Mr. Burke that I questioned you as to why you permitted these one-arm bandits to operate when the injunction issued by Judge Wilson restrained other officials from interfering with these machines, did not enjoin you from doing your duty in ridding Will County of slot machines. You knew that Judge Wilson did not make you a party to the injunction proceedings until over three months after you took office.

Puts Burke on Spot

Mr. Burke, you knew the state of the public's mind in regard to slot machines, why then, did you voluntarily appear before Judge Wilson on May 21st, 1937 and voluntarily enter into a stipulation or agreement in the slot machine case?

You meekly consented to Judge Wilson's jurisdiction and without a semblance of protest you entered into this stipulation. Then Mr. Loughran told that on May 21st, 1937, in the circuit court of Will County, case number 42663, that Mr. Burke willingly appeared to have Judge Wilson enjoin him. Mr. Loughran then read the injunction proceedings which is too lengthy to quote at this time.

$500.00 Reward

Mr. Loughran further stated, that in none of the Will County papers, for the past few weeks, advertisements offering a reward of $500.00 if these facts are not as published. To date, no one has claimed this reward, not even you, Mr. Burke. Therefore, everyone including yourself must assume that they are true.

Mr. Burke, the stipulation I am referring to was given wide spread publicity, informing the people that your hands were tied, however, it was never published or brought to the attention of the public that on the very same date, you agreed to the stipulation, the entire injunction proceedings were dismissed. So the stipulation devolved itself into the fact that your hands were tied for a very brief period, but the citizens of Will County were lead to believe that you were restrained by Judge Wilson from enforcing the law against the slot machines. You either were shutting your eyes for the benefit of the slot machine syndicate, or grossly lax in doing your duty. Mr. Loughran further stated, that it was apparent to everyone that Judge Wilson was favoring the slot machines syndicate when he issued this injunction, and by your failure to act, Mr. Burke, it must have been clear to you that this omission on your part would indicate that you too were favoring Judge Wilson's actions in this injunction proceedings. Is it not a fact, Mr. Burke, that your failure to oust the slot machines, was because of an understanding between you and Judge Wilson. The people of Will County demand an answer from you.

Quotes Judge Blatt

I also desire to refresh your recollections, Mr. Loughran said, by calling your attention to a radio talk given last Thursday, October 24th, 1940, by our former judge of the Will County Court. Mr. Loughran quoted Judge Blatt as follows: "The flaunting of vice, gambling rackets and syndicate control had become so open and notorious that on two separate occasions, the latest being in September, 1940, instructing the grand jury, the Honorable Judge James V. Bartley, of the Circuit Court, who as a good citizen rearing a family in this community, in using his talents and influence to eradicate these vicious interests instructed the grand jury to investigate these conditions, under the guidance of the states attorney, no evidence was presented to the grand jury in either instance. The average good citizen can only ask, why?"

Accepted Challenge

Now, Mr. Burke, in your campaign ads, and statements you have informed the Will County voters, that you are running on your record and invite an inspection of it. This challenge I have already accepted. Throughout this campaign, I have been making your record the issue. I have accepted your challenge and now I challenge you to defend your record. On the back of your candidate card, which is in the form of a record, you say, "The record speaks for itself." I heartily agree with you. It certainly does speak for itself, in fact I am basing my campaign upon it. In still another advertisement of yours, you used the slogan "Actions speak louder than words". Again I heartily agree with you, your actions certainly speak for themselves, but I am going to let the thinking citizens of Will County be the judges and draw their own conclusions. By the way, Mr. Burke, speaking of slogans, what became of the slogan you had four years ago. "A man who made good on the job should be put in charge of it". Let me ask you just one more question, Mr. Burke. What generally happens when a man fails on the job?

A Brief History

As we gather here to open this building, and dedicate the various memorials let us remember that this is not a new church, by way of congregation, for both congregations, who, now that they are united have quite an historical backing. The oldest congregation dates back to 1859 or 80 years ago, when Reverend Bletsch and Reverend Rinder organized the "New Bremen Religious Society". Under this head it began a course that was destined to continue 80 years later here in this new sanctuary. In 1863 this society was sent its first regular resident pastor, the Reverend Fickenscher, and under Reverend Frank Schuler, the district superintendent, held its first quarterly conference January 3, 1863. The list of ministers who served this church are as follows:

R. Fickenscher, F. Kluckhohn, H. Richter, E. Fitzer, C. Weinreich, C.
F. Kluckhohn, J. Schaefer, C. F. Morf, A. H. Kopplin, G. L. Limper, A.
Karnopp, Wm. Roegge, H. F. Schmidt, S. Steinacker, F. R. R. Klenzky, F. G. Ruff, J. J. Moor, C. F. Krughoff, A. D. Schussler, H. B. Lang, A.
F. Ladwig, B. B. Zeuner, J. L. Jochum, T. A. Loeppert, C. H. Hedler.

During the eighty years there have been several changes and improvements made. The original sanctuary became too small, and as a result, in 1886, under the direction of Rev. Limper, the edifice later known as the Orland Township Methodist church was built. This served its congregation for 52 years or until 1938, when fire caused by lightning destroyed it.

In 1905, a new parsonage was built in Tinley Park, by Rev. J. J. Moor.
At so early a date the building of the parsonage in the village stands as mute evidence of the urban trend.

The younger congregation, the village church was organized in 1897 by Mrs. M. E. Padotski, who organized a Sunday school in the local school house. For preaching services she invited students of the Garrett Biblical Institute. Through these student ministers, Rev. A. F. Clark became acquainted with the field, and same out to preach. He was so well liked that the people here requested his return, and he spent the next three years here. During his time the larger connectional interest was made known, and this new religious group, "The Tinley Park Union Church," united with the Methodist Episcopal Church. The ministers who served this church are as follows:

A. F. Clark, Jeffries, Griswold, Villars, John C. Holland, G. T. Ne-smith, Johnathan Thompson, D. F. Bent, S. Swartz, M. L. Wickman, G.
Gable, G. W. Welsh, P. S. Lent, J. A. Foard, E. D. Palmer, L. P. Flynn, F. A. Fields, J. L. Chaney, G. Dude, D. S. Fleming, T. A. Loeppert, C.
H. Hedler, P. Hastings, R. Pierce.

The merger of these two church groups both belonging to the same conference and centered in the same village, is another step forward in their history. With this step the building program became a necessity and makes for greater possibilities in the future than either of the two groups, alone could hope for. The past has been effective. In the lists of ministers several names are outstanding today led by Dr. John W.
Holland, Radio Minister of WLS, who served here as his first charge.
Again, in the past two ministers were sent out from the Tinley Park churches. These are Rev. Christ Schellhase and Rev. W. J. Weber.

Our past has been fruitful. Our future is even brighter.
When these services are over, and we settle down to our regular work, we have a large task, but with God's grace we can say "Lord, We are Able."

A Message From the District Supt.

Greetings and congratulations on the success of your adventure of faith. To aid in the building of a church to the glory of God and the salvation of our fellowmen is a high privilege much to be cherished.

You have been engaged not only in dealing with material things and financial matters, but with deeply spiritual values. Phillip Hubert Frohman, of the firm of Frohman, Robb & Little, architects for the Episcopal cathedral at Washington, D. C., has this to say about the honor of building a church:

"The purpose of a Christian church is the same now as it was six hundred years ago. An age which demands more in the way of physical comfort has added to the number of requirements, but essential requirements, have never changed. These major requirements are determined by the fact that a church building is a temple built for the worship and to the glory of God, a house of prayer, a place where in the Sacraments of the Church may be celebrated, as well as a place for religious instruction."

May God bless you all, and in the use of your beautiful church may He give you your heart's desire in the winning of many men, women and children during the years to come to your Lord and his Kingdom. "Unto Him who hath loved us and washed us from our sins in His own blood, and hath made us kings and priests unto God and his Father; to him be glory and dominion for ever and ever. Amen."

CHARLES DRAKE SKINNER

I Am the Church

Lo, for many years I knew that you were coming to my doorway and so I prepared myself for you. In my service great men turned their minds to building my creeds and working out my doctrines, not that your mind be bound, but that it be guided and freed. For centuries choice souls have worked out my ceremonies of worship, written my great hymns, composed my matchless music, and painted my masterpieces of art—for you. For you my gifted preachers and my devoted leaders in education have worked and dreamed. From the gifts of many consecrated folk I had a building erected near you, to which you could come as a toddling child and in which today, as a child of God still, you can have your heart warmed, your dreams and visions given a Christian purpose and outlook, and the citadel of your soul centered forever in God. Use me then, that your life be richer and through you the kingdom of God may be more surely and quickly established among men, I am your Church.

Farmers Deserve a Friend In the State's Attorney's Office

Living in the lonely countryside, the farmer has special problems of protection of his family, his property and his livestock. This protection is fully realized only when the state's attorney is sincerely interested in the welfare of the farmer. James E. Burke has proved himself such a state's attorney . . . with good reason he is known as "the friend of farmer" because he has acted in close consultation with the "F" men and other farmer organizations to drive crime out of Will county. Keep a friend of the farmer in the State's Attorney's office.

Bowling Chatter

Here we are back again after an absence of several weeks to give you the highlights of our Ten Pin Pounders.

It seems there has been a lot of the fans straining their necks every week to find out who Ten Pin is. Alright folks I'll be a sport and you can test your detective ability. On next Thursday night, November 7th, I will give you a positive clue as to my identity. See if YOU can pick it up. Now for the dirt on the bowlers.

Notice Otto Bormet abandoned his telescope ball. Find a better one Otto? Your score don't show it. Did you ever see a backward hook? If you see Art Roswell, it works too. Wonder what's wrong with Cole. His 125 average doesn't look like his last years game. It may be those southern mint juleps Carleton. Becker should roll better than 127. He rolls coal down the chute better than that. Maybe you better put a chute down the alley, Becker. See Earl Strasburg dropping a few points. What's the matter, Earl is the pin boy doing you dirt too? Some of the ladies enjoy Joe Ingrams little bow before the take off. They say its just too cute.

See Roland Woodcock coming up a little. Are you the farmer who said if you had a bangboard behind the pins you'd show us a good score? If you're not, excuse me. I like Stevenson's delivery. It is smooth as well as effective.

Harry Carlquist is still in the cellar. Why don't you get Mandrake to help you, Harry, or maybe better get Lathar. Notice more and more of the ladies coming down to cheer their darlings. It's nice of you to come and we are glad to have you. Wonder what was wrong on Alley 21 and 22, Oct. 24th. Saw the 2 captains and Secretary Vacker in what was apparently an argument, nothing serious, I hope.

Torrid Torrence is having trouble getting a good score. He says he will turn on the heat pretty soon now. Wonder if that is the same cigar Kost has every week. It is always exactly the same length.

Do you know that in bowling 3 games you throw 960 pounds down the alley? Tell your husband that the next time he says he is too tired to carry out the ashes.

See you later,
Ten Pin

R. I. BUYS DIESELS

E. M. Durham, Jr., Chief Executive Officer of the Rock Island Lines announces the U. S. District Court in Chicago, has approved an order authorizing the road's Trustees to purchase four Diesel locomotives.

Two of the new Diesels will be of 2000 horsepower each, and are for service on the new all-Pullman, streamlined train to be put in operation between Chicago and Arizona points this winter.

The other two Diesels will be of 1000 horsepower each and are being put in service on the line between Albert Lea, Minn. and Sioux Falls, S. D., via Estherville, Iowa, to effect the economies that the operation of Diesel engines makes possible.

Democrats Say
They Will Carry
Will County

The Democratic Party will carry Will County in a manner comparable to the 1936 election, it was predicted today by Bernard J. Fay, Will County Democratic Chairman. Mr. Fay said, "The people of Will County have faith in President Roosevelt and will not stand for a change now in this time of National emergency. They realize that world conditions make it imperative that we keep an experienced captain at the helm of our ship of state."

Mr. Fay further stated, "Our confidential poll and canvass of the County indicates that the entire Democratic ticket will sweep the County. The farmers of Will County, said Mr. Fay are not willing to trade Republican leaders of high finance have a better plan than the triple A, the farmer is entitled to know what it is. Up to the present time, they have not heard of a better plan other than Willkie's statement giving lip service to the present program as enacted by Roosevelt and Wallace. However, the farmer realizes that the same selfish group of Wall Street brokers control Mr. Willkie as they controlled the policies of Herbert Hoover in the darkest hours of the agricultural life of this country."

Mr. Fay praised the candidacy of Harry B. Hershey, Democratic candidate for Governor by saying, "Harry B. Hershey will be a Governor of the whole State of Illinois. He is a downstate man who understands downstate problems. He is a farmer, a lawyer, and a business man and has lived practically his entire life in Christian County which is located in Central Illinois. Mr. Hershey's opponent, said Fay, is backed by the same group of utility corporations that are backing the Republican presidential nominee. He has been a La Salle Street corporation attorney and has had no business or administrative experience whatsoever. I think the people of Illinois, said Fay, will decide which man will make the better Governor, a utility corporation lawyer or a man of the people such as Harry B. Hershey."

Mr. Fay also predicted that the entire Democratic County ticket would be elected.

Northern Illinois Champion
To Be Picked

Corn pickers will compete for the championship of Northern Illinois at a field day and corn husking contest to be held Thursday, Nov. 7, at the farm of Kenneth Furr, near Genoa, Illinois.

Liberal cash prizes are being offered and many winners in the various county contests have entered the race for the title of Champion of Northern Illinois. To increase the number of entries, prizes are being offered all contestants.

The contest is being conducted by Kenneth Furr and Associates of Genoa, and will be held on the Furr farm four miles north of Genoa, east of Route 23, between Genoa and Marengo.

Several thousand persons are expected to attend the event which will bring together the best corn pickers of northern Illinois. Adequate parking facilities have been provided by the committees in charge.

In addition* to the corn picking contests there will be extensive displays of farm machinery and field demonstrations of combines.

No admission will be charged. Lunch will be served on the grounds. In the event of bad weather, at least 3,000 people can be sheltered.

Heavyweight
Wrestler

Oki, Shikina, top ranking Japanese heavyweight will face Dizzy Davis of Houston, Texas, in one of the star bouts Friday night, November 8th, in the Eagles Hall at Blue Island. Sharing double windup honors will be Rudy Kay, German strong boy of Chicago and Karol Krauser, of Poland former Olympic champion. Each match is of sixty minute duration.

Shikina has baffled the heavyweight stars of America with his wily Oriental tactics. The heavyweight athlete from the land of the rising sun combines his jiu jitsu hold with the catch as catch grips as practiced in America with amazing results.

Especially effective is his nerve center hold which paralyzes the arm for a sufficient length of time to render a foe helpless. It is stated that Davis will protest these grips to the members of the Illinois Athletic Commission. Whether the Commission will rule against Shikina remains to be seen.

Davis has had a successful career recently in his campaign in the midwest. The temperamental colorful Texan is respected for his talent as a grappler, even though he is not liked by the fans for his unsportsman actions in the ring. However in a sixty minute match, anything can happen and if Davis can evade the 'nerve center' hold he has a good chance of upsetting the dope.

Rudy Kay, powerful German heavyweight meets an equally powerful star in Krauser, Kay has been wrestling the top heavyweight for several years and has the experience and ability to cope successfully with Krauser.

Karol is a former Olympic champion and European titleholder and was an officer in the Polish army. He is rated one of the first ten grapplers in the world.

Lefty Pacer, the Ohio college boy and Dale Haddock, "Gentleman from the South" are paired in the third match of this all star card. Plenty of action is expected in this match. Pacer is fast, clever and capable of going places in the heavyweight division. Haddock is of the excitable type who likes to get rough when the going is rocky.

Matchmaker Stubby Dahn believes this is the best card he has signed this season.

DEMOCRATIC CENTRAL COMMITTEE

May Seek Speakership

Representative Joseph Sam Perry announced this week that if re-elected to the House of Representatives of the General Assembly of the State of Illinois that he would seek the office of Speaker or Majority Leader of the Democratic Party, depending upon which of the offices is assigned to a down-state Democrat.

His candidacy was first made public when he released a copy of a letter to all Democratic candidates for the General Assembly, seeking their support for the speakership.

In the event of a Republican controlled House, Representative Perry stated that he expects to seek re-election to the House of Representatives. Adamowski gave up his seat in the Legislature, to make an unsuccessful bid for the office of United States Senator, now held by James M. Slattery.

If Perry is successful in his quest of either of these positions it will be the first time in history that a major State office has been held by a Du Page County man.

Representative Perry is County Chairman of the Du Page County Democratic Central Committee, a position to which he has been elected for four consecutive terms. He was Master in Chancery of the Circuit Court of Du Page County for four years before he was elected to the General Assembly, where he has served two terms.

Commenting upon his record the Legislative Voters League says, "His energy, activity and qualities of leadership displayed throughout two terms entitle him to re-election."

Representative Perry is an overseas war veteran, a member of the Episcopal Church, Elks, Moose and various other civic and fraternal orders. He holds a Master's degree from the University of Chicago, where he also received a degree in law. He was admitted to the Illinois Bar in 1927, and has been actively practicing law in Chicago and Wheaton since 1928.

No Chance To Steal Election Says Burke

State's Attorney James E. Burke, Republican candidate for re-election, in the closing speeches of his campaign, pledges that "the vicious attempt to steal an election in Will County last June will not be repeated on November 5th."

"All the resources at my command will stand ready to quash even the slightest attempt to swing this election—one of the most important in our history—by vote frauds," Burke said.

"I feel confident that the rigorous prosecution by me of the illegal voters in the last election has had the proper effect, and imported hoodlums will not attempt any manipulations of our election."

In this connection, Burke charged his Democratic opponent with alliance, politically, with the same elements who committed the illegal voting.

"My opponent," Burke declared, "has openly admitted that it was his political associates who were responsible for the vote frauds. I pledge you that they will not successfully secure his election or that anyone else by illegal balloting."

Burke said his opponent has consorted with Judge Edwin L. "Slot Machine" Wilson, defeated in the judicial election, and said that his opponent's election would return to power those same elements who had been responsible for fostering slot machines and gambling in Will County.

In his campaign, Burke has pledged himself also to continue the close consultation with the "F" men and other farmer organizations which has resulted in ridding rural Will County of crime.

He promised the sameable, forceful and just prosecution of the lawbreaker, which in the past four years has resulted in acquittal in only three of the thousands of cases which passed thru the State's Attorney's Office.

Burke assured his supporters that "My vigilance will always continue to the end that the criminal will fear to unleash his menace in Will County and our homes, our lives and our property will be safe from any attack."

THE QUALIFICATIONS FOR CIRCUIT CLERK

Paul V. Wunder, Republican candidate for the office of Clerk of the Circuit Court, has been conducting one of the cleanest campaigns that it has been the writer's opportunity to observe.

Mr. Wunder, in an informal chat, told this correspondent that "the man who opposes me is a good man; he had to be to overcome the obstacles in the primary race. I do not wish to take one iota of credit away from him. BUT, I firmly believe and so many of my supporters believe, that I am the best qualified man for the office that in my humble judgment, the voters who think before placing a cross in a square before a candidate's name, will not fail to elect me to this office. All I can say at this time is that, if elected, I will endeavor to serve the public to the best of my ability; that I will courageously refrain from any shady dealings in the conduct of the office or in my private life and that I will at all times place the business of the office before friendship or pleasure."

Mr. Wunder is not going about shouting his virtues and his qualifications; indeed, he does not have to shout about them; for they speak for themselves! And past deeds are the finest and most accurate yardstick to measure any man by.

Mr. Wunder, although comparatively young, has long been an active member of the Republican party. His faithful labor has made him an outstanding favorite with the younger element in the GOP, but Mr. Wunder exhibits a mature judgment in his opinions that finds great favor with young and old alike.

Mr. Wunder was employed in the office during the tenure of his father, the late Paul V. Wunder, Sr., and during his clerkship, received no more consideration than did any other employee of the office. His father often remarked to friends that if a young man fought hard enough and had the courage to forge ahead, he eventually would succeed, and that while a little help may be a kindly act, it also weakens the morale of the person receiving this help, and while he is my son, and employed by me, he must be able to successfully execute the duties of the office or he would definitely not be an asset to that particular office.

It was during this clerkship that Paul V. Wunder, Jr., learned the multitude of arduous and painstaking tasks that go with the office of Circuit Clerk. He learned them the hard way, by experience, and now that he is a candidate for that office, that early training stands him well ahead of all other candidates.

To know Paul Wunder is to like him. To like him is to vote for him, and Mr. Wunder has a multitude of loyal friends who are willing to fight for him, and they all feel that the voters as a whole, should give to Paul the greatest majority of votes ever cast in this county. Solid citizens are doing most of the campaigning for Mr. Wunder and it is with a cheerful smile that he greets the opportunity of repaying the trust the voters placed in him at the last primary election, by serving both the county and the Republican party to the best of his ability.

Steers Selling On Highest Basis

October slaughter of livestock in all departments will exceed that of a year earlier by the following percentages: cattle, three; hogs, 21; sheep and lambs, two. Prevailing prices covering killer steers are $2 to $3.50 per cwt. higher than a year earlier, while hogs are off 75c, with fat lambs unchanged. Top steers now are selling on the highest basis in three years, heights also attained by fat heifer.

It is quite unusual to see killer steers selling at such a wide margin over hogs, although as recent as 1937 that also was the case, but we now have to consume practically all of the pork we produce within our own borders as our exports have decreased to small volume.

Exports of meats last month dropped to the lowest level for any month since the war began in Europe over a year ago. Shipments abroad of beef and veal in September were 38 per cent below a year ago. Pork exports fell off 58 per cent and lard sales were down 60 per cent. On the other hand, imports of meats also have decreased.

Feeder cattle are costing 50c more than a year ago, while replacement lambs are on a par with a year earlier. Feeder cattle are arriving in largest numbers of the season, but supplies and quality will begin to taper off in November. Feeder lambs now arriving are mostly whitefaces. Arrivals of replacement lambs from northwestern ranges also soon will be shut off.

ORLAND PARK

The Orland Park Fire Department was called out to the Gottlieb Braasch farm four miles northwest of Orland last Saturday morning when an oil fired furnace became flooded and a pretty hot fire swept up the chimney. No damage resulted however.

Remember the big tenth annual Armistice Day dance which the Orland Park Post of the American Legion is holding Saturday night, Nov. 9th in Goodings Grove hall.

As a result of the farms in the Wilmington area being put out of business by the munition plant, the Capital Dairy at Orland Park has sustained a loss of 7,000 pounds of milk daily from that section. To make up this shortage the Dairy is depending on the dairymen now supplying it to increase their milk production. The local plant receives milk daily from as far away as Dwight, Morris and other points.

The Ladies Aid Society of the Christ Lutheran church will hold their annual bazaar and chicken supper in the Lutheran school on the afternoon and evening of Nov. 7th. Many attractive articles will be on sale in the various booths. Supper will be served from 5 p. m. on. Everyone is heartily invited.

The Bump Estate Farm in Homer township consisting of 80 acres farm land and 10 acres of timber was recently sold for a total of $9,350 to settle the estate.

The Guild of the Orland Park Methodist church held their monthly meeting in the church Thursday.

Edward Manning who was hurt in a recent auto accident is taking hospital treatments. He suffered a kidney injury.

Miss Grace Nye who figured in the same accident and who was also badly hurt, is expected to be able to leave the Little Company of Mary Hospital sometime this week, having been in this hospital since the accident a number of weeks ago. She will be taken to the home of her brother, Rev. Mr. Nye in Elizabeth, Ill. Rev. Mr. Nye was formerly pastor of the Orland Park Methodist church.

The Orland R. N. A. held a Halloween Party and Penny Social in the Creer Hall last Thursday night. First prize went to Ann Yunker who wore a hunter's suit and carried a gun. The Heintz Company held a demonstration on mushrooms.

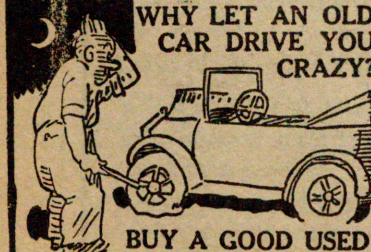

The Orland Fire Dept. has had an oil heater installed in the fire engine house.

Ray Estand entertained a group of friends at a costume Halloween Party in his home Thursday night.

Mrs. Eric Forslund of Chicago is visiting with her daughter, Mrs. S. S. Knox and family.

The room of Mrs. Lucille Barton in the Orland school enjoyed a Halloween Party.

Republican Aid To Farmers

The farmer of today is awakened to the vital issues that are to be decided in the presidential election on Nov. 5—and every survey shows that the farmers of America are determined to solve these problems by the election of Wendell L. Willkie, the Republican candidate for president.

For too long, Republican leaders point out, farmers have lived by a program of scarcity. And this is not what the farmers are entitled to expect.

American lands can produce in abundance, to fill the needs of all the people. And when this abundance is achieved farmers will enjoy their full heritage and their incomes will again be in parity with what agriculture has a right to expect.

Farm incomes are low today, it was pointed out, and they are supported by government subsidies which are raised by taxation. This taxation comes out of the farmers' pocket. He is merely fooling himself when he thinks that his government check is anything but a repayment of the high taxes he himself is paying.

But more than the question of a parity income, leaders said, is the question of a continuance of the free life which is traditionally that of American agriculture.

These rights have always been the concern of the Republican party, and today Wendell L. Willkie once more is a Republican candidate championing the liberties of a free American people.

Our democracy is threatened. This threat comes from abroad, and it also comes from an administration in Washington which is attempting to foist foreign ways of government on our American people.

All free Americans have joined in the crusade for their liberties, with Wendell L. Willkie as their leader. The farmers of America are in the forefront of this crusade, and their voice will be heard on election day again championing the American way of life by voting for Willkie and Republican candidates.

MOKEMA SCHOOL NEWS

As a last tribute to Roy Shenk, the children of the Mokena School brought money with which to buy a basket of flowers. The classmates and teachers of Roy were shocked and deeply grieved to hear of his sudden death last Saturday evening. He will be missed by all of them.

PRIMARY

We have started health charts. Each child marked so many points for clean hands, teeth and fingernails and combed hair.

There have been good results so far.

JUNIOR HIGH NEWS

Margaret Rose enrolled in the 6th grade this month.

Corrine Marti had her tonsils and adenoids removed Wednesday.

The 6th grade have some maps of North America on the board showing important bodies of water and countries.

On Hallowe'en night, millions of masked youngsters like these pictured above will be scurrying through the streets playing pranks in a tradition which has prevailed hundreds of years. The Chicago Motor Club warns motorists to be especially on the alert for them on that night, since the children will be excited and more likely to dash into the street than usual. The motor club also advises parents to caution their own children to stay out of the streets.

INTERMEDIATE

Mrs. Furgeson's pupils will take part in an assembly Friday, Oct. 25. The theme will be based on Hallowe'en and Columbus. There will be recitations and music. Parents are most cordially invited.

HIGH SCHOOL

The High School Chorus has acquired new music. The chorus seems to be getting better steadily. Having about ten members.

SPORTS

The three football teams have had a series of six games. Out of the six, Gordon Spiss's team has won one. Bill Brun's team, one and Bob Homerding's team two, making them championships for football.

Last Friday the All Stars of the three football teams played the losing girls team in a game of soft ball. Also the regular soft ball team played the winning girl's team. The boys won both games.

127 Station Lutheran Hour Network Resumes Oct. 27

ST. LOUIS — (Special). — The coast-to-coast broadcast of the Lutheran Hour will be resumed Sunday, October 27, on a network of 127 stations of the Mutual Broadcasting System. In addition, approximately 100 stations here and abroad will carry the program by electrical transcription.

Walter A. Maier, Ph. D.

The regular speaker will again be the noted Walter A. Maier, Ph. D., professor of Semitic Languages at Concordia Seminary here, whose dynamic evangelism has featured the Lutheran Hour since its modest beginning over the Mutual Network five years ago.

The first broadcast of the new series will be from 1:30 to 2:00 p. m., New York Time, over a group of stations in the Eastern part of the country, with a repeat broadcast for mid-Western and Western stations from 4:30 to 5:00 p. m., New York Time.

The remarkable expansion of the Lutheran Hour has been the result of unusual listener interest and response to its message, the declared purpose of which is to "Bring Christ to the Nation." More than 200,000 letters were received from listeners during the last season of broadcasting—as many as 12,500 letters being received in one week.

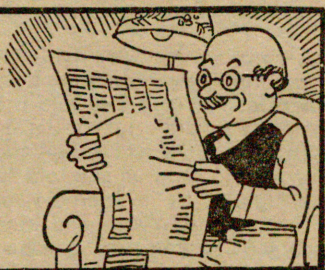

A Praille department has been established to handle the increasingly large volume of mail coming from blind listeners, and the services of linguists are in constant need because of the many letters from abroad and from listeners in foreign-language groups. Correspondents range from persons high in the social, industrial and political world to prisoners in many penal institutions, miners and trappers in isolated frontier camps, and from men and women heavily burdened with life's problems.

Dr. Maier, a graduate of Boston University, Concordia Seminary and Harvard, is widely noted for the vigor and sincerity of his spiritual message, and for his strict adherence to fundamental Christian doctrine. His condemnation of Communism and other atheistic doctrines has been widely praised by clergymen and laymen of various denominations.

The Lutheran Hour will be heard regularly each Sunday afternoon throughout the fall, winter and spring. As in the past, choral music for the broadcasts will be furnished by either the Lutheran Hour Chorus or the St. Louis A Cappella Choir—the former a selected group of male singers from Concordia Seminary, the latter a mixed chorus of 60 voices.

THE COVERED DISH CHURCH SUPPER
(See Recipes Below)

As I sit here thinking about church suppers, my mind wanders back several years to the suppers I attended in my old home town. There was always a feeling of congeniality, of hospitality and fellowship. The annual church supper was something that couldn't be, and wouldn't be, missed.

Many times it was a covered dish supper. There was usually a great variety of food. The menu was divided up into the main dish, the salad, the bread and butter, and the dessert. Each lady of the church was made responsible for one item of the menu; and she, no doubt, prepared her own favorite recipe.

Can you pass a table containing a tempting assortment of foods without wanting at least a taste of everything? Can you decide whether or not you want the coconut cream pie which is heaped with fluffy whipped cream, or the rich-looking chocolate cake with the thick fudge icing, when you know that you are entitled to only one dessert? Of course not! Instead of having such a wide selection of food for a covered dish supper, why not plan a well-balanced menu so that everyone gets exactly the same?

Hot Water Cheese Pastry.

(Makes 30 tarts)

1½ cups shortening
¾ cup boiling water
4 cups general purpose flour
2 teaspoons salt
1 teaspoon baking powder
2 cups American cheese (grated)
Place shortening in warm bowl, pour boiling water over it and cream thoroughly with a fork. Place flour, salt, and baking powder in flour sieve and sift gradually into the creamed mixture. Add cheese. Mix thoroughly. Make up into dough ball, then chill in refrigerator. When ready to bake remove from refrigerator, divide dough and roll out. Cut into rounds and bake.

Tuna Cracker Pie.

(Serves 4 to 5)

1 tablespoon onion (chopped)
2 tablespoons green pepper (chopped)
1 tablespoon butter
2 tablespoons flour
1 can condensed chicken soup
6 tablespoons milk
1 can condensed cream of mushroom soup
1 can (7-ounce) tuna fish
Crackers for bottom and top of pie
Cook the onion and green pepper in butter until soft, but not brown. Then add flour and mix well. Add the chicken soup and cook until thickened. Stir in the milk. Add this to the cream of mushroom soup. Put the tuna fish in a strainer and pour a cup of hot water over it to take off the excess oil. Then add flaked tuna fish; heat to blend flavors. Cover the bottom of small casserole with crackers (round) and put tuna mixture into the casserole.

For top: 12 crackers
½ cup hot milk

Soak the crackers in the milk until soft. Then arrange crackers on top of pie and bake in a moderately hot oven (375 degrees) for 20 to 25 minutes.

Chocolate Fudge Cake.

(Serves 25)

1 cup shortening
3 cups light brown sugar
3 eggs (slightly beaten)
¾ cup cake flour
2 teaspoons baking powder
½ teaspoon salt
1¼ teaspoons soda
¾ cup sour milk
¾ cup cocoa
1 cup boiling water
1 teaspoon vanilla

Cream shortening and add sugar gradually, blending well after each addition. Add slightly beaten eggs and mix well. Sift together the flour, baking powder, salt, and soda. Add to the creamed mixture alternately with the milk. Blend cocoa and boiling water. Add to the cake batter with the vanilla, and mix just until the batter is smooth. Pour into 3 8-inch square pans, which have been greased and lined with wax paper. Bake in a moderate oven (350 degrees) for about 30 minutes.

Macaroni and Cheese.

(Serves 90-100)

8 pounds macaroni
4 pounds cheese (grated)
2½ gallons white sauce (medium)
2 tablespoons prepared mustard
2½ cups butter
3 quarts soft bread crumbs

1. Cook the macaroni in boiling, salted water until tender. Drain and rinse in cold water.

2. Grate the cheese, and add to white sauce, with the prepared mustard.

3. Combine the macaroni and the cheese sauce. Place in greased baking pans.

4. Melt the butter and mix lightly with the crumbs. Sprinkle over the macaroni and cheese.

5. Bake in a moderately hot oven (400 degrees) for about 30 minutes.

Clam Chowder.

(Serves 50)

1½ quarts carrot (chopped)
1½ cups onion (chopped)
3 quarts potato (chopped)
7½ cups celery (chopped fine)
5 quarts clams
5 quarts water and clam liquor
Salt and pepper to taste
5 quarts milk
1½ cups flour
1½ cups butter
1 cup parsley
2 tablespoons paprika

1. Chop the vegetables in small pieces and place in large kettle.

2. Chop the clams and add together with the clam liquor, water, salt and pepper. Cover and cook about ½ hour, or until vegetables are tender.

3. Scald milk.
4. Make a smooth paste of the flour and water. Add half of this flour paste to the clam mixture and half to the scalded milk.

5. Cook each, stirring constantly, until the mixture thickens.

6. Combine and add butter, parsley, and paprika. Serve very hot.

Chocolate Nut Drop Cookies.

(Makes 4 dozen)

¼ cup butter
1 cup sugar
1 egg
1½ cups flour
2 teaspoons baking powder
¼ teaspoon salt
½ cup cocoa
½ cup milk
½ teaspoon vanilla extract
1 cup nut meats (bracket)

Cream butter and add sugar slowly while beating constantly. Beat egg and add. Mix and sift all dry ingredients and add alternately with the milk. Blend thoroughly. Then add vanilla and nut meats. Drop by spoonfuls on well-greased baking sheet and bake in a moderate oven (350 degrees) for about 12 minutes.

Baked Sweet Potatoes.

(Serves about 25)

20 medium sized sweet potatoes
2 teaspoons salt
3 cups cream or rich milk
2½ cups brown sugar
¾ pound marshmallows

Peel potatoes and boil in salted water until tender but not soft. Slice potatoes in half and place in a glass baking dish. Add cream and sprinkle with brown sugar. Bake approximately 10 minutes in a hot oven (400 degrees) or until sugar has melted and caramelized with the cream. Then arrange marshmallows on top. Return baking dish to oven and brown marshmallows.

HOUSEHOLD HINTS

Miss Eleanor Howe's book of "Household Hints" is just what the title implies. It is a book written to help you homemakers in doing the ordinary things about the home in less time, and to add a bit of interest to those menial tasks.

Before your fall housecleaning and refurnishing campaign gets under way, send for a copy of this clever, helpful book.

You may secure your copy by writing to Eleanor Howe, 919 North Michigan Avenue, Chicago, Illinois, enclosing 10 cents, in coin.

GUESSWORK

By CARLTON JAMES

(Associated Newspapers.)
WNU Service.

HEAVY, dense fog engulfed the city. Great clouds of it, resembling phantom ships, rose from the river bottom and floated spectra-fashion beneath the yellow eye of light that was the street lamp.

Inspector Joe Warren paused to watch the curious apparition. For a moment he stood in the deep shadow near the bridge's ironwork, his hat pulled down and coat collar turned up against the bleak, wet cold.

He shivered and was about to move on when a figure emerged from the darkness beyond and came into the light of the street lamp. The figure was that of a man, and at sight of the inspector standing alone there he came forward.

As the stranger drew near, Warren saw that his face was drawn and white, and that his eyes held a frightened look.

"You're Inspector Warren, aren't you?" he asked, and Warren peered at him in some surprise. Queer, he thought, that this stranger should recognize him at a glance.

Without waiting for a reply the other man rushed on. "You'd better get help! A man just now committed suicide! Jumped off the bridge there, into the river."

Warren was used to emergencies, had schooled himself for quick thinking. Scarcely before the stranger had finished speaking, he had produced a police whistle and was blowing it shrilly.

Dimly, out of the darkness came an answering whistle, and seconds later a uniformed policeman materialized out of the fog and gloom. A second followed and then a third. Warren issued short, crisp orders. The policemen vanished as quickly as they came. Warren and the stranger were alone again.

"They'll get him," Warren said. "May be too late, though."

"Good. I hope so. It was awful." The stranger nodded nervously and moved away.

"Wait a minute."

The other man paused, looked over his shoulder inquiringly.

"What's your name? May want to look you up later."

"Oh!" The stranger turned, came back. "Name of Blair. George Blair. I was coming across the bridge," he further volunteered. "Saw a man standing near the rail. As I approached he climbed up and—"

"Let's walk back," Warren cut in. "You can show me the exact spot. Maybe," he added, as if by way of apology, "we can help the cops."

Blair seemed to hesitate, seemed to recoil at the idea. He said after a moment, "All right."

The two men walked silently out on the bridge. Midway across Blair halted.

"There's his coat, there." He pointed to a dim outline on the ground. Warren made out a crumpled coat, weighted down by a small box. "He was standing here," Blair went on, "when I came up. I grasped at his arm and he turned on me snarling."

"What did he say?" Warren asked.

Blair seemed to reflect. Presently: "Something about letting him alone. A man could do what he chose with his own life. Then he dropped the box he was carrying and struck me in the chest. By the time I had regained my balance he was overboard."

"Hum-m," said Warren, and peered over the high railing into that black void that lay below. Ostensibly he was listening for sounds of the rescuing policeman. Suddenly he turned.

"Blair, you're lying! If those cops down there find the body they'll find the body of a man who has been murdered!"

Blair's eyes bulged. He seemed on the point of collapsing. But Warren continued: "Get a grip on yourself, man! Let's have the story. It's your only chance."

"Only chance of what?" hopefully. "Only chance of not making things worse. I suspect you had a reason for killing him."

"I didn't kill him! I didn't! He—" There was a sob in the man's voice. He seemed to be struggling to maintain his senses. "He—he stole some jewelry from my store. I came from the back room in time to see him going through the door. I gave chase, caught up with him on the bridge. He dropped the box and flung off his coat. We struggled. He tried to throw me over the railing, almost succeeded, but I managed to break loose. I struck out fiercely. The blow knocked him off balance and he fell into the river below." He finished, panting heavily.

"And you thought you killed him," Warren went on. "You became frightened, and then, instead of going to the police like you should have done, you thought up this suicide gag. Is that it?"

"No one would have believed me," the man pleaded. "It looked bad. I thought it was all right—then I saw you."

"And wondered how long I'd been around, eh? You knew if I'd been here long I'd have heard the struggle and the splash as the chap fell into the water. Well, I heard neither."

"But, how—"

"Guesswork, mostly," Warren said briefly. "That and a few obvious blunders you made. Easy to see you're no professional at the game. But here come the cops. We'll see how true your story is."

Bulky figures were emerging out of the darkness. Policemen. Two of them carried a limp form between them. A third came behind.

"We've sent for an ambulance," one of the uniformed men said, addressing Warren.

"Dead, is he?" Warren asked.

"No. Not quite. Pretty well fagged out. He had managed to get to the dock, and was hanging on to a stringer when we arrived."

"Any marks on him?"

"A bruise or two on his face. No real damage."

"Good. Do what you can for him, till the wagon arrives."

Warren turned to Blair. "Go on home, mister. And sleep it off. But, first, pick up your box of jewels from where you placed them on this bird's coat."

Blair turned, stopped, then straightened up. "How," he asked, "did you know I placed them there? What made you suspicious, anyway?"

Warren permitted himself a smile. "Guesswork mostly. I'm used to dealing with real criminals. Amateurs like yourself are easy to figure out." He paused, then: "Next time, be more careful. If things had happened as you said they did, the box of jewels couldn't possibly have been on the coat."

One Woman

By JOHN CAMPBELL HAYWOOD
(McClure Syndicate—WNU Service.)

WOMEN have entered very little into my life. Except one. The memory of her face, not beautiful in regularity of features but in expression of love and tenderness is with me still. The tones of her voice haunt me. I cannot forget her. I have lost all trace of her although I have tried diligently to find her, aye, even hired a detective to bring me news of her, alive or dead.

It was dusk when I left my office uptown and entered the subway. In a happy mood I took my seat. A few seats away across the aisle I saw her. Shabbily dressed but neat.

Then I saw her face, half turned to watch something on my side of the car. I guessed, from the gurgles and occasional shrieks that rose above the noise, it was a baby. And such longing, such passionate tenderness as shone in the woman's face stirred me deeply. What was her story? Had she lost a little one? It could not be that for there was no sadness in her look. As I speculated she turned her face to me. I am twenty-eight. Not ill-looking. My clothes stamp me, I believe, for what I am to be, a prosperous man, but through the drift of circumstances I am not that. Yet, from my well-polished shoes to my gray fedora the woman looked me over. Calmly. Casually. Then turned with soft gaze upon the child.

At Fourteenth street I folded my newspaper and prepared to leave. The woman, holding in her hand a little purse, moved onto the platform of the car.

About half way up I saw she had dropped her purse. Gladly I picked it up. With a thrill of joy I called "Madam!" Now I should have speech with her. She stopped and as I reached her side and handed her the purse she clutched it and leaned as though faint against the side wall. "I am glad," I said, "I happened to be behind. You might have lost it."

"Lost it!" her voice came thinly. An echo. "And it is all I have in the world." She put her hand to her chest. Tears came into her eyes. "Come." I put my hand on her arm. "Let me help you up. In the air you'll feel better."

"Thank you." Together we mounted the stairs. There were many passing. They jostled us. With the woman leaning upon me I felt conspicuous.

"Come out of this crowd," I said in a don't-contradict-me voice, and led her into the entrance way of a closed store. "Now, cut out that weakness. You have your purse, haven't you? Be glad." She wiped her eyes. And smiled, not exactly a whole smile, but a good sample.

In the half light I saw her eyes glint fiercely at me. She bit her lip, then with wonderful self-control, said:

"You must let me go. I—I think you misjudge me. You have indeed been wonderful. I—I liked you—" She gave me a tender glance—"I forgot you were a stranger."

"Don't go. I'm sorry! Tell me about yourself. Perhaps I can help you."

For a moment we were both silent. Then impulsively she took hold of the lapel of my coat and told me her story; the sordid story of an orphan's struggle in a workaday and heartless world. And as she told it, her face lighted by a memory of good in some man, "wise and kind and intelligent as you are" she had said, her hand trembled on the clutched lapel and she shook me in her vehemence.

I felt love growing in my heart for her. She told me her name was Aileen Turner and she lived in a cheap boarding house on the East side. I promised to call. But I did not. I put her in a taxi and paid the fare from some loose change in my pocket. When the car disappeared, there went with it my watch, my wallet and considerably more cash than I could afford to lose.

Strange Facts

! Superfine Lines !
! Wind the Musician !
! Seatless Temples !

! The finest ruled lines in the world are Nobert's lines, made by diamond points on the glass plates used to test the power of microscopes. Some of the plates have more than 225,000 of these hairlines within the space of one inch.

! Fingal's cave on Staffa, one of the Hebrides islands off Scotland, is believed to be the only cavern in the world in which one may hear natural musical sounds. It was this "music," produced by the wind playing around the prism-shaped pillars, that inspired Mendelssohn to write his famous overture, Fingal's Cave.

AROUND the HOUSE

Items of Interest to the Housewife

The color and flavor of roast beef gravy is improved when a tablespoon of brown or white sugar is added to it.

If the juice from an apple pie runs out into the oven, shake salt on it. It will burn crisp on the bottom of the oven and may easily be removed.

A small quantity of leftover pie crust may be rolled thin, cut into squares, sprinkled with sugar and cinnamon and baked until crisp. These are very good served with lemon sauce for dessert.

Apples stuffed with mincemeat and baked make a delicious winter dessert. Wash, peel and core the apples and stuff them an inch from the top. Bake as usual. Lemon sauce goes well with this combination.

It is usually advisable not to store cookies or cakes in the same container with bread. The odors and flavors are likely to mingle. However, if you wrap a loaf of cake or cookies in several thicknesses of heavy waxed paper you will have no trouble.

Cookies and cakes in which honey is used need about two weeks for ripening. They improve with age, provided, of course, they are stored in covered jars in a cool place. Regular fruit jars with rubber rings make good containers.

In nearly all cases where cactus begins to wilt and die, it is because the roots have been injured by too much moisture. You can report it now. The soil should be sandy, and see that it has good drainage. Most people water their plants too much in winter. When the sun begins to run high, then plants require more water.

Daisy Hot Dish Mat An Appropriate Gift

By RUTH WYETH SPEARS

IT WAS the flower handle of the tea-pot lid that suggested this daisy mat. I had been thinking of making a hot dish out of firmly braided strips of cotton cloth. I wanted it to be thick and sewn firmly like a rag rug, so that it would stand frequent scrubbing. The design had to be novel and gay so that it would be appropriate for a Christmas gift or would attract attention if used to sell at a church bazaar. All the directions you need to make one are right here in the sketch.

Cotton flannel or heavy cotton knitted material are good to use for the braided strips. Cut the strips two inches wide if the goods is heavy or wider if light weight. Braid tightly and then use No. 8 white cotton thread to sew, as shown. A set of these mats are pretty on the table; and mats for oval dishes may be made by sewing two daisies together.

NOTE: There are directions for a hot dish mat made of cable cord in SEWING, Book 4. Books 2 and 3 also contain directions for many gifts and novelties. These booklets are a service to our readers and each contains 32 pages of illustrated directions for things to make for the home. How To Relieve Bronchitis Creomulsion relieves promptly because it goes right to the seat of the trouble to help loosen and expel germ laden phlegm, and aid nature to soothe and heal raw, tender, inflamed bronchial mucous membranes. Tell your druggist to sell you a bottle of Creomulsion with the understanding you must like the way it quickly allays the cough or you are to have your money back.

Good Principle

My principle is to do whatever is right, and leave consequences to him who has the disposal of them.—Thomas Jefferson.

The Pleasant Way to Correct Constipation

Why let yourself in for all the discomfort of constipation—and then have to take an emergency medicine—if you can avoid both by getting at the cause of the trouble?

If your difficulty, like that of millions, is due to lack of "bulk" in the diet, the "better way" is to eat Kellogg's All-Bran. This crunchy toasted cereal—a natural food, not a medicine—has just the "bulk" you need. If you eat it every day, it will help you not only to get regular but to keep regular, month after month, by the pleasant means you ever knew! Eat All-Bran often, drink plenty of water, and "Join the Regulars." Made by Kellogg's in Battle Creek. Sold by every grocer. If your condition is chronic, it is wise to consult a physician.
